SOMMER SETTLES OUT FOR $20,000; $500 TO LAWYERS

Man Who Lost Sight in Explosion in 1917 to Be Paid by Continental Portland Cement Co.

NET BENEFIT TO HIM WILL BE $10,500

Attorneys' Connection With Case Was on Basis of Half of All in Excess of $3000 Offered to Him.

Joseph Sommer of 7137 Vermont street, who lost his sight in an explosion in a St. Louis County quarry Aug. 6, 1917, has settled his suit against the Continental Portland Cement Co. The company will pay Sommer $20,000, from which he must pay his lawyer's fees and certain expenses of the case. A stipulation withdrawing the suit was filed today with Circuit Judge Hall.

The lawyers, who handled the case on a contingent basis, will receive $500. Their agreement with Sommer was for one-half of whatever he should obtain in excess of $3000, the sum which the company first offered him to settle out of court. The expenses which he must pay are estimated at about $1000, leaving him about $10,500 for himself and his family of four.

The case was about to come to trial following a reversal by the Supreme Court last August, of a verdict in Sommer's favor for $25,000, one-half of the amount asked for in his suit. The Court's action, taken chiefly on the ground that the amount was excessive, had the apparent effect of putting Sommer back six years after his injury, at the point where he started. This aspect of the case attracted wide attention, and was taken as an illustration of the law's delays, and of the need for a workmen's compensation law in Missouri.

However Sommer has gained his much—he had obtained from the Supreme Court a statement of the sum which the court would consider reasonable. That sum was $20,000. The company's counsel, in considering the prospect of a new trial, seems to have concluded it likely that a jury would award Sommer $20,000. By the settlement now made, the company does the expenses of another hearing.

Previously, the highest amount the company had offered in settlement was $3000.

Has Wife and Three Daughters.
Sommer's family consists of his wife and three daughters, Marie, 15; Ma, 11, and Christina, 6, the youngest having been born since he lost his sight. In the long period of his disability and ineptness, Sommer has made a living by peddling shoe strings and thread, and the oldest daughter has worked at washing in a factory. Last fall, and particularly at Christmas, the publicity given to the case brought many gifts of money and helpful articles, including a radio set, to the Sommer home.

The amount Sommer will actually receive, $10,500, if invested on a 6-per-cent basis, would yield the family $25.50 a month; if invested in Government bonds for the sake of absolute security, it will yield less.

Sommer's counsel, who negotiated the settlement, were Glenn Mohler and the firm of Leonard, Sibley & McRoberts.

Original Suit in 1917.
Sommer's original suit against the Continental company was filed Jan. 19, 1917, and was for $50,000, his allegation being that the accident was due to the negligence of the company, for which he was working at the time. By April, 1917, the case progressed to the point where Sommer was permitted to sue as a poor person. From that time until January, 1919, the case was delayed by efforts to get service on a powder company, and by discussion of proposals for settlement out of court. Dilatory motions for the company carried the matter along until Oct. 21, 1919, when the case went to trial, resulting in the verdict for $25,000.

The company appealed to the Supreme Court, and the case was transferred from Division 1 of the court to the court en banc, filled the time until the reversal last August.

PERJURY INQUIRY INTO LIQUOR CASE TESTIMONY

Judge Faris Instructs Grand Jury to Summon Dyott and Get List of Cases.

Federal Judge Faris this afternoon instructed the grand jury to investigate cases of apparent perjury in the testimony in several cases involving violation of the prohibition law, which have been tried in his court.

In his instructions, Judge Faris pointed out that a defendant who testified in his own behalf may be prosecuted for perjury, if his testimony is proven to be false. "No man is compelled to testify in his own defense," the Court said, "and when a defendant elects to go on the stand he is required to tell the truth."

He suggested that the grand jury should summon John C. Dyott, assistant to the Attorney-General in prohibition enforcement here, and should ask him to enumerate the cases of apparent perjury which have occurred in recent liquor trials.

The flat contradictions between the testimony of defendants, and the statements of enforcement agents, have been very noticeable in liquor cases. Judge Faris has commented on this condition from time to time, and has said more than once to a jury that its chief task was to find out "who is telling the truth and who is committing perjury."

Dyott, when told of the judge's recommendation that he be summoned said he had the records in several cases, and would have them ready for the grand jury. The grand jury returned to duty this afternoon, after a prolonged adjournment.

Lithuanian Government Says It Has Telegraphed League to Prevent Extension of Conflict.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Feb. 19.—Both the Lithuanian and Polish governments informed the British government today of their intention of appealing to the League of Nations to settle the troubled situation in the Kovno district.

By the Associated Press.
WARSAW, Feb. 19.—Fresh attacks by the Lithuanians on the Polish forces in the neutral zone allotted to Poland are reported here today. It is also said that the class of 1922 has been mobilized in Lithuania. Reports state that regular Lithuanian troops are participating in the opposition.

Kovno Dispatch Tells of Killing of Dozens in Attack by Poles.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Feb. 19.—Polish forces have invaded Lithuania and attacked the Lithuanian troops, according to a dispatch from Kovno to the Lithuanian Legation here. The dispatch adds that dozens of persons were killed and hundreds wounded.

The dispatch to the legation, which was dated at Kovno Sunday, says: "Polish regular troops of all arms, after the occupation of the neutral zone in the region of Orany, advanced into Lithuanian territory and attacked the Lithuanian troops. Dozens were killed and hundreds wounded."

The Lithuanian government has telegraphed the League of Nations reporting the facts and asking it to take the necessary steps to prevent an extension of the conflict.

Meager details received in official circles in Paris indicate there has been action on both sides. Dispatches from Polish sources to the Foreign Office say that as soon as the Poles completed the occupation of that part of the zone given them by the Council of the League of Nations, the Lithuanians began firing with artillery upon the points occupied. At the Lithuanian legation here it was declared the Poles had not only occupied their own part of the neutral zone, but had crowded over into the part assigned to the Lithuanians by the League. It also was asserted that the Polish guards and officials needed for the administration of the region were accompanied by troops of all arms, contrary to the decision of the League Council, which, while allowing the claimants each to administer a part of the zone, intended the zone should remain neutral as far as military operations were concerned.

The impression voiced in French official circles is that the Lithuanians are carrying out the threat they made in the League Council to resist the occupation of any part of the zone by the Poles. Lithuania has an army of about 50,000 men.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—President Harding was said by his friends today to have virtually decided not to appoint Senator Harry S. New of Indiana to a place in the Cabinet.

Representative Wood, Republican, of Indiana, recently protested against the appointment of New to any Cabinet position, saying New had been retired by his constituents and "should take his medicine."

NEW HIGH PRICE FOR POUND

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Demand sterling bills were sold in the local foreign exchange market today at $4.89 1/16, a new high price, since May, 1919, when the "pegged price" of $4.75 was removed by the British Government when it ceased buying sterling for its own account. The par rate of sterling exchange is $4.86, and the extreme low of $2.18 was established in the collapse of the foreign exchanges in this market in February, 1920.

Today's price represents a week-end gain of 7-16 of a cent. Scarcity of commercial bills and the Senate's approval of the debt funding bill were responsible for the recent advance. Other allied exchanges were slightly higher, French francs selling around 6.04 cents.

COMPLETION OF WAR STATUE HELD UP BY 2 PAIRS OF GLOVES

Question of Etiquette Involved in Which Art Is Compelled to Yield to Form.

(Copyright, 1923.)
PARIS, Feb. 19.—Two pairs of gloves are delaying the erection of the statue for American soldiers who fought in the war. It is a question of etiquette, and art must yield to form.

The model of the statue, to be placed in the Place des Etats Unis, was exhibited in the Salon des Artistes Français. It represents an American soldier, Allan Seeger, the poet, clasping hands with a poilu. Imagine the horror of the sticklers for form when it was discovered both soldiers wore gloves! Maj. Mercadier, secretary of the committee, was so shocked he at once wrote to the subscribers demanding the gloves be removed. In France, he said, etiquette does not require gloves to be removed, but in America it does. He insists the French bow to the American custom. The controversy the Major started is still raging, although most Frenchmen agree with him, but meanwhile the doughboy and the poilu clasp each other's gloved hands in the privacy of the Salon.

DEATH SENTENCES, IMPOSED ON NEGROES FOR RIOT, SUSPENDED

Supreme Court Orders Arkansas Cases Back to District Court to Determine Fairness of Trials.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Sentences of death, imposed by Arkansas Courts upon Frank Moore, Ed Hicks, J. E. Knox and other negroes convicted of the Phillips County riot, on the charge of having killed Clinton Lee during the riots of 1919, were suspended by the Supreme Court today and the cases ordered back to the United States District Court to determine whether the men had received fair trials in the State Court.

In behalf of the negroes, it was contended that they had not excited or participated in a race riot and it was insisted that they had been tried upon while assembled in a church at Hoop Spur to devise means to relieve themselves of peonage, it being alleged that as tenant farmers or share croppers they were being held in servitude by the State.

Justices McKeynolds and Sutherland dissented from today's decision, declaring that appeals to the Federal courts in such cases by writ of habeas corpus could not be approved.

Fourteen negroes and five white persons were killed in the riots at Elaine, south of Helena, following a negro insurrection in October, 1919. Besides the six negroes affected by today's decision, other negroes are to be tried again for the rioting in Lee County.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—By a vote of 6 to 3 the House Rules Committee refused today to report out a resolution giving Henry Ford's offer for Muscle Shoals right of way in the House. Chairman Campbell reiterated his opposition on the ground that Ford had stated he would not accept the proposition contained in the bill reported by the Military Committee.

GLIMPSE OBTAINED OF EGYPT'S GOLDEN AGE

Majesty of Scene Set 33 Centuries Ago Defies Adequate Description, Says Spectator.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

LUXOR, Egypt, Feb. 19.—There was a royal gathering in the Valley of the Kings yesterday afternoon. It was an impressive but somewhat bizarre spectacle, this assembly of distinguished personages who had come across seas and continents to witness the sight of a gold-embossed, gem-studded series of coffins of the Pharaohs, with all his magnificence lying dust-covered around him.

It was a perfect day. The lapis lazuli sky was wonderfully clear, the air was cool and a breeze tempered the burning heat in this rocky basin called the Valley of the Kings. A road from the Nile to the tomb was especially prepared, mostly with convict labor.

People began arriving at the tomb early in the morning and by noon the largest crowd that has been in the valley this season had gathered. Among them were Dr. Morton Howell, American Minister to Egypt, and Mrs. Howell.

The tomb was opened just before 1 o'clock. Lord Carnarvon arrived soon afterward and invited Dr. Howell to descend. They stayed perhaps half an hour and had not emerged when Lord and Lady Alenby arrived.

At 2:15 the Queen of the Belgians arrived with Capt. de Witte, a distinguished archeologist. The Queen was welcomed by Col. Watson and Abdul Hamed Sultan Pasha, Under-Secretary of the Ministry of Public Works, and Lord Carnarvon. She was then joined by Lady Alenby and Lady Evelyn Herbert. The party walked through the barrier about the tomb, where a guard of honor saluted.

Howard Carter, escorted the Queen and Capt. de Witte down the stairs into the lower chamber, with Pierre Lacau, Director-General of the Egyptian Antiquities Department, following. Lord Carnarvon descended a few minutes later, when Crown Prince Leopold of Belgium drove up in an automobile and descended.

The first sight of the party were the two life-sized statues of Tutankhamen standing against the rear wall, one on either side of the doorway into the inner chamber. Behind the statues of the dead Pharaoh a platform had been built on which the visitors stood to peer into the second chamber where stands the golden canopy hiding the sarcophagus.

The canopy is about four feet high, five and a half feet long and four feet wide and exquisitely decorated. Effigies of Nephthys and Isis stand at one end of the canopy, while on two of the other sides figures of deities of the underworld are in position.

Powerful electric lights cast weird shadows across the floor of the tomb, producing disconcerting views until the eye becomes accustomed to the confusion of the reflections and the realities. The figure of Isis standing with outstretched wings as though to protect the dead Pharaoh, cast a fantastic shade upon the canopy.

Gems Scattered Over Floor.
Through an opening an inner canopy is seen within the larger one in which the mummy of the Pharaoh is expected to be found. Scattered around the inner chamber on the floor and heaped against the walls, are confused piles of jewels, including amulets, chains, strings of gems, alabaster vases, cups and statuettes. On the canopy, magnificent gold decorations reflect the rays of the electric lights.

To understand properly how this tomb comes to be situated in such a peculiar position and why it is filled with such sumptuous evidences of wealth and splendor it must be borne in mind that what now are called the houses of Kings were not tombs to those who made them. They were abodes of the dead. They were not graves where lifeless mummies would be placed for eternity, but rest houses of those who, although dead, yet lived.

Daughter of Duke of Westminster Who Will Wed Steeplechase Rider

LADY URSULA GROSVENOR.

YEAR FOR DRIVER OF AUTO THAT KILLED BOY TO WED A JOCKEY

Edward Brockman, Sentenced to Workhouse After Plea of Guilty of Manslaughter.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Feb. 19.—The morning newspapers announce today that Lady Ursula Grosvenor, daughter of the Duke of Westminster, is soon to marry Jack Anthony, amateur jockey and successful steeplechase rider.

Lady Ursula will be 21 years old Wednesday and with her becoming of age she receives a fortune. She is an accomplished and fearless horsewoman.

If Jockey Anthony weds Lady Ursula Grosvenor, he will marry into one of the richest families in England and probably its largest landowners. The Duke of Westminster possesses about 30,000 acres of land in Cheshire and Flintshire and about 600 acres of property in London. His family residence is Eaton Hall, in Cheshire, one of the largest country houses in the kingdom, and his possessions besides include a half dozen other magnificent estates.

Lady Ursula is the Duke's eldest daughter by his first marriage. Born in 1879, he married in 1901 Constance Edwina, daughter of the late Colonel William Cornwallis-West. The Duchess obtained an absolute divorce late in 1919, and in 1920 the Duke married Violet Mary Geraldine R. Wey, daughter of Sir William Nelson, and sister of James Hope Nelson who married Isabelle Vail of St. Louis.

The Duke's first wife in 1920 was married to Captain James Fitzpatrick Lewis, former army aviator. The Duke is a keen sportsman, patron of the turf, yachtman and polo player and is the owner of a celebrated collection from which not long ago Henry E. Huntington purchased the famous Gainsborough "Blue Boy" and other notable paintings.

U. S. Supreme Court Rules He Is Not "Free White Person."

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—A high-caste Hindu is not a "free white person" within the meaning of the naturalization law and therefore under the recent decision of the court excluding Japanese, is not entitled to citizenship, the Supreme Court held today.

The court ruled the words "white person" must be given the meaning they have in common usage and are not to be applied through a scientific study determining whether the persons are descended from white stock.

Governor of Rhenish Prussia Expelled for Using Word "Bandits" — Money Intended for Striking Railway Men Seized.

By the Associated Press.
DUESSELDORF, Feb. 19.—The expulsion from the occupied area of Dr. Gruetzner, Governor of Rhenish Prussia, for writing "an impudent" letter to Gen. Beaussein, Belgian commander at Duisburg, has caused a stir among the civilian population. The letter, in protest against the imprisonment of Oberburgomaster Jarres of Duisburg, is alleged to have referred to the forces of occupation as "bandits."

Gelsenkirchen's fine of 100,000,000 marks, assessed upon the town as a penalty for the shooting of two French soldiers, has been paid out of the 110,000,000 paper marks which the French seized when they took over the railroad station and the Rathaus. The French also have appropriated 250,000,000 marks in tribute. It is believed this money was to have been used for the benefit of the striking railroad men. The French will turn it to their own railroad operation account.

The German police at Essen are to return to duty and will be allowed to retain their arms. The French will remain established at police headquarters where they took over after the restaurant brawl of last week.

The boycott against the soldiers at Essen and Recklinghausen is evident in losing ground for stores in both cities are beginning to accept French trade.

Woman Sent to Prison.
Helena Maske, a German woman, has been sentenced to six months in prison by a French court martial for failure to obey an order to leave the occupied area on account of activities against the forces of occupation. The wife of the editor of the Aachener Free Press has been arrested because she refused to obey an order to follow her husband, who was expelled.

Dr. Gruetzner, the union labor leader in Essen, who issued an appeal to the German merchants and hotel and restaurant proprietors to refuse to serve the French and the Belgians, has been sentenced to two years' imprisonment and to pay a fine of 8,000,000 marks.

Three German court officials at Bochum have been arrested for opposing the French. The stores in Bochum were closed in a protest there was a similar closing at Bottrop, where Oberburgomaster Baum was arrested for refusing to deliver copies of three telegraph officials at Dueseldorff have been arrested.

On Saturday the French met the Essen boycott by sending out two motor trucks in charge of two officers with a detachment of men. At the first store entered a soldier tried to buy chocolate. The storekeeper refused to sell. He was arrested. The trucks moved on to two other places, where the same process was repeated. Before the French buying expedition had proceeded much farther the stores resumed selling to the French.

Railroad Accidents.
Two of the worst accidents since the French and Belgians began the operation of the railroads occurred early yesterday. A locomotive at Dahlenhausen crashed into a passenger coach carrying French civil railroad workers, killing two and injuring 11 of them. One Belgian railroad worker was killed in a collision between Belgian and French trains at Ostfeld.

The French deny a report that French troops fired on miners at the Prince Regent mine near Bochum. The French say the Germans located out from the mine a guard of French troops sent to supervise the loading of coal cars. The French fired a few shots into the air, wounding three, which the Germans immediately opened.

A new order issued by the International High Commission in the Rhineland gives German customs officials until tomorrow to decide whether they will accept an offer of re-employment by the French or be dismissed.

MORTGAGE COMPANY DENIED PERMIT TO SELL STOCK

Portland (Ind.) Concern Recently Purchased the United Home Builders of America.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 19.—The blue sky division of the State Finance Department today refused a permit to the Portland, Ind., concern to sell stock of the United Home Builders of America, which had offices in St. Louis until forced into a receivership at Dallas, Tex.

Among the reasons for refusing the permit was that the company's articles of incorporation provided that the directors might submit a contract for approval to any meeting of stockholders called to consider it, which contract, when considered by the holders of a majority of the stock, would be as valid as though all the stockholders had ratified it. S. Hawkins owned the majority of the company's stock.

Other objections were that some of the company's "literature" appeared to be misleading, and to a provision that the company would not be open to legal attack because of the directors' interest. The company was incorporated in Delaware, with a capital of $4,000,000. Principal assets listed in the application were $1818 in cash, $5676 in bonds and $7,494,000 in book value of stocks of subsidiary corporations. The balance sheet shows that the company charged $293,579 to operating deficit last year, of which $121,000 had accumulated from a former period.

INSANE PATIENTS ORDERLY IN FIRE COSTING 25 LIVES

Not an Attack on Attendants Reported, Although Inmates Were Those of Homocidal Tendencies.

THREE GUARDS AMONG THOSE WHO PERISHED

Blast in Hell Gate Which Broke Insulation on Wiring Believed to Have Caused New York Blaze.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Several inquiries are under way today into the tragedy on Ward's Island, a little jutting rock in the swirling waters of the Hell Gate, where yesterday fire swept a ward of the Manhattan State Hospital for the Insane, killing 25 patients and three male attendants.

A mysterious fire started in the main building two weeks ago, but it was checked, according to Fire Marshal Brophy.

Nineteen bodies had been recovered before dusk and removed to the city morgue, but six more remained in the ice-chilled ruins. There it was feared, had been cremated, and Supt. Marcus B. Heyman expressed doubt whether more than recovered bodies ever would be recovered.

The blaze was believed to have been started by a terrific blast in Hell Gate, which broke the insulation on electric wiring, causing a short circuit.

Insane Behavior Calmly.

A curious hush pervaded the island during the night. The bedlam of cries and ravings, which ordinarily might have been expected, was entirely lacking. The calm population of the State's asylum presented a phlegmatic calm after the usual storm, a day on which the island had been so violently shaken.

The one unit of the 75 on the island that was attacked by flames housed the most violently insane—men of homicidal tendencies, who at any moment might have leaped at the heads of their rescuers. But they did not. Not a single attack upon attendants was reported.

A funeral barge moved down the East River shortly before midnight carrying to Bellevue morgue the 19 bodies that had been recovered. Only five cases was identification possible. Several World War veterans perished in the flames.

Fire Fighting Forces.

The blaze destroyed only a part of the great building which, overcrowded as it is, sometimes shelters 2200. The building is 60 years old.

The island's fire fighting force is wholly inadequate, according to Dr. Heyman. It has enough apparatus for a town of 8000, but the trained personnel is lacking.

The island has among its inhabitants many recognized pyromaniacs. The peril in which inmates of the island live has been brought to the attention of public officials in the last 26 years by six fires besides yesterday's.

The force blaze yesterday, sweeping the west wing of the main building, sent 1600 maniacs, confined in that section of the asylum, out into the biting winds of a zero weather morning as the remainder of the 4225 inmates remained in their wards cowering and walling.

The fire was discovered at 5:05 a. m. by Michael Campbell, an attendant in Ward 43, in which all the fatalities occurred. His calm, heroic work, and that of James Hill, attendant in charge, and Patrick Bittling, George A. de Emo and George F. Bates, the three attendants who were burned to death, prevented a far greater catastrophe.

"All Up for Breakfast."

Upon discovering the blaze Campbell manned a hose line and fought back the flames while the other attendants, directed by Hill, ran up and down the 200 foot top floor corridor, rousing the patients with the cool orders: "All up for breakfast."

As fast as the maniacs could be marshaled from their rooms, they were marched in orderly procession to the fireproof dining hall, far from the scene of the fire. Seventy of the 27 inmates of Ward 43 had been led or carried to safety when a huge water tank in the blazing attic crashed through the ceiling, completely blocking the corridor that led to safety, and filling the hall with flames and smoke. City firemen, fighting their way past the blazing barrier, brought out several struggling, screaming maniacs, and those who had been overcome by smoke, while dressing for the "breakfast" call. Most of the dead were found in the rooms and corridors beyond the fallen tank. Several doctors believed to have been carried down and burned beneath debris when the floor gave way.

The building in which the fire occurred is an ancient brick and wood structure shaped like the letter E. It is three stories high and had accommodations for a maximum of 2200 patients. There were about 1600 in it when the fire was discovered. Of these about 800 were seriously endangered by the flames. They were the patients in the huge west wing.

Screams of Patients.

While the rescue work was being carried forward, the flames burst through the roof of the building and lighted up the entire island. Screams of the terrified patients nearest the flames roused the entire population of the madmen's isle and in a twinkling every window framed a maniac's face.

Some laughed and cried out in glee at the sight of the flames. Others stared moodily. Others wrenched with maniacal strength at the barred windows of their cells and screamed in anguish and fright for rescue.

The city force, forsaking its engines, fire towers, hook and ladder trucks and hose wagons, went to the fire with no equipment except a few lines of hose which could be transported on the tiny ferry. Fire boats which responded to the alarm had to lay hose lines nearly a half mile long before they could pump water on the fire. But despite their handicaps, the city fire force and the island force succeeded in saving the island to the two upper floors of the west wing.

GUILTY OF MURDER

LILLIAN S. RAIZEN.

WOMAN SLAYER OF DOCTOR FOUND GUILTY

Verdict in Case of Mrs. Raizen Carries Sentence of 20 Years to Life.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—A verdict of guilty, second-degree murder, was returned by a jury yesterday against Mrs. Lillian S. Raizen, who shot and killed Dr. Abraham Glickstein in his Brooklyn office, Oct. 10, 1921. Mrs. Raizen's defense was that the physician had ruined her life and that she had been driven to insanity through haunting fear of him.

The jury returned the verdict after deliberating 12 hours and 15 minutes. When the jury was given the case at 11 o'clock Saturday night, the defendant, sobbing, was led to the prisoners' room. She fell asleep, her head resting on her aged father's shoulders. She spent a restless night, however, awakening numerous times and asking if the jury had reached a verdict. Receiving negative answers, she prayed aloud.

Then, after the long wait, came the word. Mrs. Raizen seemed to sense the verdict, twice falling, to her knees to pray while on the way to the courtroom.

When the verdict, which carries a sentence of from 20 years to life imprisonment, was spoken by the foreman, the defendant crouched down into her chair and shuddered. She made no audible sound. Throughout her trial she had been subject to spells of violent weeping. But there were no tears in her eyes as she stood at the bar to answer the perfunctory questions required by law.

Mrs. Raizen's father, Charles Schaeffer, and her brother, Charles Raizen, arrived after the verdict was announced. He hurried to his wife's chamber, took up his wife's arms and attempted to cheer her.

There they discovered Beaumont suffering from a fractured jaw and scalp wounds. "It's news to me," he said, when told the car had been destroyed. "I left it somewhere near Tower Grove Park after a policeman stopped me and said I was drinking too much to drive it. He gave me cashfare home and promised to look out for the auto."

Beaumont said he later left his car in the hands of a man named King, who he said was a friend of his. He was attacked without cause by a group of men at Third and Lami streets. Police reports show no record of Beaumont having been stopped on King's highway, as he described. He said the automobile was valued at $800.

SAFE BREAKERS OBTAIN $1497 IN FOUR ROBBERIES

Packing Company at 2734 Franklin Avenue Robbed Third Time in Year, Loss Being $350.

Safe breakers got $1497 in three robberies here and one in East St. Louis sometime between Saturday night and this morning. An attempt to force a fourth safe here failed. The East St. Louis loot, $640, was the largest obtained at any one place.

When robbers, after climbing on the roof of an adjoining building and then prying loose the iron bars over a second story rear window of the Missouri Packing Co. at 2734 Franklin avenue, found their way blocked to the office downstairs by a wooden partition of the stairway at the bottom, they sawed a hole 14 inches square through the partition. The combination of the safe then, was knocked off and $350 taken. Checks were left scattered around the room. This is the third time the place has been robbed within a year.

The combination knob of the safe at the Missouri Cone Co., 809 South Fourth street, was pulled from the safe by cracksmen and $400 taken. The robbers got in by forcing a window.

An attempt to open the safe at the Draper Drug Co., 1801 Olive street, by hammering the knob, failed. The thieves then took $300 from a hiding place under a counter, $10 from the cash register and $7 from a stamp machine.

Nothing was obtained at the Stock-Peterman House Furnishing Co. at 3719 North Fourteenth street because the inner doors resisted efforts to pry them open after the combination had been knocked off the outer door.

Robbers obtained $840 by hammering off the combination knob of the safe in the office of the State Loan Co., on the third floor of the Murphy Building in East St. Louis. An envelope containing $40, and also $7 in loose bills taken from the safe, were left behind by the robbers.

The robbers got in by climbing a rear fire escape and going through an office opening on skylight. Other windows gave indications that attempts had been made to force them. A sledge hammer and a smaller hammer were found in the rear of the building.

With the approval of budgets of almost every charitable and philanthropic agency that will federate their appeals for funds for 1923 in the community fund's campaign, Feb. 23 to March 5, the total amount required by 80 of the 40 agencies to be represented will be approximately $1,500,887. However, the public will be asked to contribute only $640,462 of this amount, as the agencies are assured an income of $860,125 from endowments and in earnings for services rendered.

Only 10 budgets remain to be approved, and if the ratio is maintained, it appears the total operating expenses of the 40 agencies will be about $2,750,000, while the amount needed from the public will be something less than $1,250,000.

Policemen searching for John Beaumont, 52 years old, of 307 Sidney street, to inform him that a four-year-old car bearing a license tag issued to him, had been destroyed by fire on King's highway, near Tower Grove Park, at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, failed to find him until 5 p. m., when a call was sent from a saloon at 2201 South Broadway to the effect that an injured man was in the place.

CHICAGO LABOR LEADER SHOT AND KILLED BY UNION AGENT

Stephen Kellher Slain by Daniel McCarthy of Plumbers' Union Before 200 Guests of Cafe.

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—Slumming parties early today witnessed the killing of Stephen Kellher, labor leader, in the cafe of Al Teaney, well known minor league baseball president. Kellher was shot dead by Daniel McCarthy, business agent of the plumbers' union, before more than 200 guests dining, dancing and chatting in the restaurant and cabaret.

A spectator, Mrs. Thomas Golden, who was dancing with her husband, was shot in the shoulder by a stray bullet. The dancing stopped abruptly as the shooting began. The music ceased. Chairs went over backward. Women screamed and fainted. Several wagon loads of men and women were taken to police headquarters for questioning. Eye witnesses said McCarthy, a union leader, was seated at a table near the dancing floor with three young women when Mr. and Mrs. Kellher entered the place.

Mrs. Kellher, it was said, came over to the table and addressed some warm remarks to McCarthy. McCarthy and Kellher had been friends but "broke" recently. McCarthy made remarks in kind. Kellher drew a revolver. Tierney, the proprietor, sought to pacify him. Kellher began shooting. McCarthy stood up. Grew his revolver and shot Kellher squarely between the eyes.

"I killed him in self-defense," said McCarthy.

EVELYN NESBITT FAILS TO APPEAR IN COURT; ARREST ORDERED

Charged With Disorderly Conduct Following Disturbance in Atlantic City Cafe.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Feb. 19.—A warrant was issued for the arrest of Evelyn Nesbitt by City Recorder Corio today, when she failed to appear in his court to answer a charge of disorderly conduct. She is alleged to have caused a disturbance in a cafe Saturday night.

The cafe manager asked for her arrest after an encounter between Miss Nesbitt and a local physician at one of the cafe tables just before she was to go on with her dance act. Miss Nesbitt, according to the police, suddenly brought the dancers to their feet by crying that the physician had approached her table and struck her in the face.

The physician said Miss Nesbitt addressed a remark to him while he was dancing with another woman, and then slapped him. He said he merely gently pushed her toward a chair. No charge was preferred against him.

MACON, Ga., Feb. 18.—The Macon Telegraph announces that Postmaster Hillier Rudisill, who, it is said, killed himself here on Friday morning, had been found short in his accounts for the $85,000. The shortage is said to have represented fraudulent stock carried in the Macon Postoffice to represent genuine packages of stamps and envelopes. Rudisill had been Postmaster only 13 months prior to which time he was Assistant Postmaster. He had been attached to the Macon Postoffice for 21 years.

GREAT SCREEN LOVERS IN ROMANTIC FILM

Norma Talmadge and Eugene O'Brien at Their Best—"The Christian" Features British Scenes.

THOSE great romantic lovers of the screen, Norma Talmadge and Eugene O'Brien, who have many picture successes to their credit, are cast together again after a long separation in "The Voice from the Mists," the week's feature picture at the Grand Central, West End Lyric and Capitol theaters.

This happy combination is a treat for those who prefer frank sentimentality to the more modern note of sophistication in the depiction of love scenes. Here we have a woman of fine sensibilities and high-strung nerves yoked in matrimony with a man who not only is unfaithful and unworthy, but who has a half-insane streak of diabolism which is unendurable.

In her life comes a young divinity student. On an impulse, accelerated by the infidelity of her husband, she follows the young churchman into the desert. That they love each other is made apparent in several vivid scenes but it is equally clear that their right-mindedness and Christian fortitude are an insurmountable barrier so long as the unworthy husband lives. Symbolism is used to good effect here by the occasional introduction of the giant figure of the mummy on his tower calling the faithful to prayer.

Under this spiritual urging the wife returns to her husband, who, with characteristic devilry sets a trap for her and the young churchman, but this reacts upon himself and in the end the true lovers are united. The emotional work of Miss Talmadge is superb and O'Brien as the passionate lover restrained by his faith is at his best.

Jack Holt and the Magic Wand.
Jack Holt and Wanda Hawley make appreciable voyage into comedy in "Nobody's Money," at the Missouri this week. The piece is pretty thin, abounding in farcical attempts to be serious and earnest endeavors to be farcical, together with many violent impositions upon credulity.

Two working journalists have created a fictitious novelist whose work is a success. Then several circumstances combine to force them to produce him. They impress an itinerant book agent into service for the imposture, but he proves a Frankenstein, appropriating their bank account, forcing them to render mental attention, and eventually stealing the fiancée of one as well as causing him to be strangled—a curious manifestation of humor.

The theater orchestra of 48 pieces does a jax turn upon the stage and gets some very effective results in syncopation, but an attempt at comedy, abetted by false whiskers and a Chic Sale corset, is enough to make the judicious weep.

Rare Settings for "The Christian."
Richard Dix and Mae Busch are the featured players in the newest screen version of "The Christian," on view this week at the Delmonte. This picture was produced under the direction of Maurice Tourneur and practically all of the exteriors were filmed in England, which greatly enhances the scenic effect and realism. There are intriguing views of London and of the Isle of Wight. It is in every way a big picture, though its entertainment value must depend on personal preference.

The religious note is uppermost and the story, which seemed vital 20 years ago, is now somewhat old-fashioned. Dix and Mae Busch are excellent in their parts, but the growing fanaticism which times his love for the actress evokes a fine understanding of the character.

From the spectacular standpoint, the mob scenes are tremendously effective, though it requires some stretch of the imagination to picture a London mob killing a preacher because an alleged prediction that the world would come to an end on a certain day turns out to be a false prophecy.

Actual pictures of the running of an English derby are introduced and the mob scenes have for their setting the plant surrounding the Nelson monument in Trafalgar Square. Phyllis Haver does excellent work in the role of the erring Polly Love.

Mother Love on the Wrong Track.
"Forsaking All Others," the week's feature at the Rivoli, gives Colleen Moore, June Elvidge, May Wallace and Cullen Landis a fine opportunity to shine in an unusual drama of mother love. In this case the mother is so wrapped up in her darling son that she plans to keep him with her always and to shield him from other women.

Youth and love will not be denied and when it becomes apparent to the mother that her son has formed an attachment for a young woman in every way worthy of his love, she sets about to break the match. In this she overreaches the mark. In her eagerness to tear the boy away from the girl he loves she convulses at his introduction to a woman of a very different type, a "vampy" creature. The idea here seems to be that association with a woman of this type will arouse in the son an aversion to femininity, but it doesn't work that way. The unsophisticated youth becomes entangled with the vampire to such an extent that in the end the doting mother accepts his worthy sweetheart as an ally to cure him of his fascination for the "vamp." The picture is well cast and beautifully photographed.

At the Liberty "The Town That Forgot God" is in its second week. This is a spectacular production with a smashing storm scene.

St. Louis buys 87 Million Dollars worth of PROGRESS

THE citizens of St. Louis on February 9th voted 67 million dollars for public improvements.

The River des Peres will be covered, creating a new industrial district; a spacious parkway built around Union Station; additional water works, playgrounds, hospitals, sewers and street widenings are provided for, besides a war memorial, new court house and municipal auditorium.

Both W. Frank Carter, chairman of the Bond Campaign Committee, and F. W. A. Yeager, president of the Chamber of Commerce, declare that two dollars of private money will be spent for every dollar voted in bonds.

In addition, the Terminal Railroad proposes spending 16 million dollars in rearranging their facilities.

This means the rebirth of a city already one of America's largest.

The courage, vision and enterprise of a people who thus unselfishly co-operate to insure future civic greatness is proof enough of the unbounded faith of St. Louisans in their city.

Our policy in this 65-year-old institution is to ever keep pace with the wonderful progress that comes with such incentive and provide every banking function for the increasing commercial life bound to follow.

ADVERTISING "Cure Your Rupture Like I Cured Mine"

Free Demonstration of Kemp's New System for 10 Days

Every rupture sufferer who is tired of being tortured by the strain and pressure of the old-time apparatus, chafed and annoyed by straps and misdirected belt pressure, can now throw away these means of torture as I have done. Get and let me explain and demonstrate my new system and how I cured myself of a dangerous double hernia rupture without pain, danger or restriction from business.

I tried every old-time truss and appliance without retention of relief. Doctor after doctor tried to induce me to have an operation for my rupture or be in danger of strangulation or death. I did not submit to a surgeon's dangerous knife, but finally did devise a system which has enabled me to again be free from my rupture. That is exactly what I have done for myself, and I will explain all about it to every rupture sufferer who will call at my permanent address—entirely free of charge. See me personally. Don't delay. Remember, a dangerous rupture may mean strangulation and a terrible death.

An

AMERICAN HISTORY FOR CHILDREN

History From 1815 to 1861 Largely Concerned With Problems of Slavery, Secession, Tariff and Internal Revenue.

New England Turns to Industry.
By HENDRIK VAN LOON,
Author of the "Story of Mankind."
(Copyright, 1923.)

THE history of our country between the year 1815 and the Civil War is largely concerned with four important problems. (1) Slavery. (2) The right of individual states to secede from the Union. (3) The tariff. (4) The internal development of the country. Upon the first three of these points, the North and the South always disagreed.

The War of 1812 had welded the nation more closely together. We ceased to be interested in European politics and were no longer divided between pro-French and pro-British parties. We began to realize that we ourselves were a nation and we forgot our neighbors' affairs in the engrossing occupation of quarreling over our own.

The people of the Northern States had, until shortly before the war, made most of their money out of trade with Europe. When this trade was cut off by President Jefferson's embargo act and later by the war, New England turned its attention to manufacturing those articles which could no longer be brought from the other side. By the close of the war, she had become a prosperous industrial region. Now England again wanted to find America a market for her own manufactures. There was but one way to protect American industry, that was the tariff, a tax laid upon manufactured goods, imported from abroad, which would make them so expensive that the people would be forced to use American-made goods.

You will readily understand that the North was in favor of such a tariff. The people of the South, on the other hand, had always been engaged in agriculture. Their cotton and tobacco fields were their chief source of income. The industrial problems of the North concerned them not at all, and they saw in the tariff only a harsh and arbitrary law which made them pay more for the articles which they needed. Consequently they were strongly opposed to it.

To a man who owned a cotton plantation a slave was a necessity, while to a man who owned a spinning mill he was utterly useless. He could not handle the complicated machinery, and the white men would not work beside him. So the North said: Let us abolish slavery; it is an evil practice. While the South said: Let us uphold slavery, for, without it, we perish.

The third great question, the right to secede, that is, the right of any separate state to leave the Union, was the subject of many and bitter debates, and finally led to the great Civil War, which finally settled the matter, presumably for all time. If a state should consider a law passed by the Federal Government unconstitutional, had that state the right to disregard that law? Who should decide whether the law was unconstitutional, or not, the individual state or the Supreme Court of the United States? Here was a chance for much heated argument, and much fine strategy was poured forth upon the matter before it was finally settled by sword and bullet.

Readers who clip and preserve these articles will have a splendid collection of historical facts. Valuable for reference or for supplementing the study of history by children.

3 1/2% Cost vs. 15% Cost

The Community Fund Will Save the Difference for Our Charities and Philanthropies

In round figures, it has been averaging 15% of the funds raised for the various charitable and welfare organizations of St. Louis just to get the money! In many cases even more than that.

Why?

Because the work of raising these funds has not been rightly systematized. Each organization has gone about it in its own way. The result has been continual duplication of effort—constant waste of motion—ceaseless irritation, inefficiency, needless expense. And, worst of all, the public has been offended and the agencies inadequately supported.

The Community Fund eliminates all these objectionable features. The forty St. Louis charities and philanthropies listed above will require over $1,000,000 for 1923. It will raise this at a total cost of not more than 3 1/2%. This statement is based upon the experience in the 112 cities where the Community Fund plan is already in successful operation.

This tremendous saving will be effected through the organization of St. Louis men of unquestioned ability and integrity for the management of a quick, concentrated campaign—holding this campaign but once a year—eliminating a host of unnecessary workers—cutting out all duplication of effort—and substituting united effort for scattering work.

St. Louis has awakened to the need of better methods in financing her charities and philanthropies, just as she has already come to appreciate the advantages of modern methods in financing her civic improvements. It is a revolt against the wasteful methods hitherto employed.

The needy and deserving of all races, creeds and colors will be served without discrimination by the forty organizations represented in the Community Fund.

The Community Fund and the $87,000,000 Bond Issue—what a wonderful pair of civic twins! The one doing for our charities and philanthropies what the other has done for our streets, sewers, parks, etc.

And the importance and necessity of organized charities and welfare work rank with those of material civic betterment. Human life is not of less value than streets and parks. Human health and enlightenment must be looked after no less carefully than sewers and paving. Civilization demands the bringing of beauty into the lives of the unfortunate with at least as much zeal as we give to landscaping our parks. What shall be said of the city that spends its millions upon material things and neglects the bodies and souls of its orphans, its crippled and its poor?

The Community Fund campaign will start Friday, February 23. You will be personally solicited. Be ready to do your full share.

GIVE!

This button is the emblem of helpfulness which will be worn—worn proudly—by thousands of St. Louisans who will have done the right thing. You'll get one as soon as your contribution is made; wear it, and be proud of it—for it will mean a lot.

Cinnamon

To most people, cinnamon is just cinnamon. Not so to Heinz chefs. Each batch must pass rigid laboratory tests for quality before it can even get into the Heinz Kitchens—not to mention the Ketchup. All other spices are as carefully selected. Heinz grinds his own spices.

DEMOCRATS SLOW
IN DIGGING HOLE
PLANNED FOR HYDE

Some of the Important Causes Measures Far Advanced on the Calendar of Either House.

APPROPRIATION BILLS
NOT YET INTRODUCED

Scheme Was to Get Certain Measures to the Governor in Time to Pass Them Over His Veto.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Feb. 13.—Legislative procrastination has made certain that the Democratic legislative program to embarrass Gov. Hyde will not be accomplished. Due to failure to get the appropriation bills along the way to passage, there is now virtually no possibility that the Democratic leaders can get the Governor into the hole which they planned at their St. Louis conference in December to dig for him.

The scheme worked out was to have the appropriation bills passed before March 1 and to have ready to pass the various bills abolishing the offices of a number of the Governor's appointees. The scheme was to get these measures to the Governor more than 10 days prior to the adjournment of the Legislature, and if he vetoed any of their favorite bills or any of the items in the appropriation bills in which there was party interest to attempt to pass them over the veto.

Status of the Program. As it is, none of the important caucus measures are far advanced on the calendar of either house, and the main appropriation bills have not even been introduced. It is doubtful if they get in before the end of this week, or early next week, which will mean that there is little probability that they will be passed before the final adjournment. The effect of this is to leave all important legislation at the will of the Governor. A bill which reaches him within the last 10 days of the session does not go back to the Legislature. If the Governor vetoes it, it is dead. A bill reaching him more than 10 days prior to adjournment must be acted upon by him within 10 days. If vetoed it is returned to the Legislature, which decides whether the Governor's veto shall be sustained.

It is probable the Legislature will adjourn Saturday night, March 17. The 75-day period during which the Legislature is paid $2 a day will end March 14 and after that time they will receive only $1 a day. When the $1 days begin the members begin packing up and usually close the session the following Saturday night.

May Speed Up Appropriations. If the main appropriation bills are introduced by next Saturday, which will be Feb. 24, there will remain only 16 working days until the beginning of the last 10 days of the session, and it is almost impossible to get through bills of their magnitude and importance in 16 days.

It is impossible to pass any bill, even one which calls for no debate, in less than five days, and on appropriation bills, which are long and which are considered section by section, two weeks is a short time. If introduced on Saturday, they could be read a second time on Monday and the House then could begin considering them in the committee of the whole the same day. Three days would be a short time for this stage of the proceedings, and their adjournment could hardly be expected before Wednesday. The final vote on the House could then come on Thursday. They could be read the first time in the Senate that day and Friday could be taken up in committee of the whole. The Senate probably will not take as much time in considering them and they probably would be engrossed by Friday night, and passed Saturday.

It probably never has occurred that the Senate has passed appropriations bills in the form sent over by the House, which means that on Monday the House would consider the Senate amendments. Failure of the House to agree to these amendments would require a report of the disagreement to the Senate, which probably would be done on Tuesday when the Senate would decide whether to recede or to insist upon the amendments.

Insistence would require the appointment of a conference committee which would take a day or two, meaning that the report of the conference committee would get back to the Senate and House Wednesday or Thursday, when final action would be taken on the measure. Thus the greater part of two weeks would be taken up, and this is allowing no time for unexpected delays or filibustering by Republicans. Even this rush would not pass the bills until March 8, nine days before the date of the probable adjournment.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH
 Founded by JOSEPH PULITZER
 Dec. 12, 1878.
 Published by the Pulitzer Publishing Company, Twelfth Boulevard and Olive Street.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLAT- FORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight for the rights of the people, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

JOSEPH PULITZER.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

The name and address of the author must accompany every contribution, but in request will not be published. Letters not exceeding 200 words will receive preference.

Out of the Machine.

Now that the bond issue has been carried by the united support of the press, it would be well for the newspapers to turn their attention to the defeat of the bills pending in the Legislature looking to a change in our election laws. The future welfare of our city is intimately connected with the expenditure of the bond money, and the proper expenditure of that money depends largely on the character of our public officials. The people can express their will at the polls only by voting for candidates selected by the party organizations because the time is not yet ripe for independent tickets.

The Republican party is strongly entrenched and is able to put over its hand-picked nominees, regardless of their qualifications. Witness the Circuit bench. The local Democracy does not rise to the dignity of an opposition party, and will not until it has been thoroughly reorganized. It can be reorganized only by electing new Committees. In most of the wards in August, 1924, if we return to the old system of permitting the Committees to name judges and clerks of election, the Democracy cannot purge itself, for control of the judges and clerks means control of the count in the primary (where Committees are elected), and we know what the counting was before the election laws were changed. It was well nigh impossible to defeat a Committee-man.

A year and a half is none too long a time in which to prepare for a reorganization of the Democracy, but if we go back to the old and corrupt system the task will be hopeless. So defeat these bills and then agitate for a new and square deal in the Democratic machine. Every good citizen should be interested in this work regardless of party, and if it is accomplished the independence of voters throwing his vote from one party to the other, can compel both to nominate fit candidates and thus the bond money will be well spent.

INDEPENDENT DEMOCRAT.

What the Chain Store Does.

Why should the chain stores be driven out of business? But the Senate Ways and Means Committee have reported favorably on this bill. I have been a resident of several cities and I believe that living in the chain store is like living in a cage. I have seen chain stores in every city in the Middle West. And the chain grocery stores in St. Louis do more toward holding down the cost of groceries in St. Louis than all other stores put together. I do not see a grocery store in the evening after coming home from work, and I find that the grocery store is the same block with the chain store is cheaper than the store with no chain store competition. This fact needs no explanation. Personally, I am not interested financially in any grocery store in the city, but I am interested in making any legitimate saving that I can, so I say let the chain stores stay and prosper. If they continue to do so in a fair competitive manner.

AN AVERAGE CITIZEN.

Detective Agencies.

YOUR editorial, "Judas at His Worst," is certainly one in which should be of interest to every person in this city, for the reason that it comes out boldly and tells its story in a manner which proves beyond a doubt that this city and any other city would be far better off without these organizations which style themselves "detective agencies." The writer fails to see what "protection" private detectives could sell employers, unless they mean to protect him from themselves.

If it wasn't for the women and children I would say let them continue, if the employer hasn't any more sense than to expect a gang of thugs to protect him, but there are innocent people, so it is up to the newspaper to rid the city of this class of people.

A POST-DISPATCH READER.

Keep Politics Out of the Schools.

The Education Committee of the League of Women Voters heartily commends the full publicity which your esteemed paper is giving to House Bill No. 222, popularly known as the Chastity Bill. This attempt to restore the nomination of candidates for the St. Louis Board of Education to party convention is in direct opposition to our fundamental aim—to keep politics out of our public schools.

You who are "never satisfied with merely printing news" can render an invaluable service to the citizens of St. Louis if you will print the names of the present Legislature at Jefferson City including the senatorial and state representative districts and the wards which comprise them. Thoughtful voters may then have an opportunity to register a protest with their legislators.

KERISA LOEB.

REST FOR THE COUNTRY.

The President's decision not to call an extra session of the new Congress will be hailed with satisfaction.

The country needs a rest from congressional chatter and agitation. Business needs a rest from threats of disturbance. The members of Congress need time to do some quiet thinking before starting to work.

There is no pressing business that the President either wants Congress to do or can get it to do that requires an extra session and the cessation of the legislative machine and the noise of debate will be a boon to the people.

TUTANKHAMEN'S MODERNNESS.

In the Sunday Post-Dispatch page devoted to the Egyptian King, Tutankhamen, the discovery of whose tomb and treasure vault has become one of the recent nine-day wonders, was condensed practically all that is known of this Pharaoh who reigned 33 centuries ago.

Tutankhamen's immediate predecessor on the throne of Egypt and Tutankhamen himself have a remarkable parallel in modern history, showing that the saying that history repeats itself is too often true. Readers will note that King Akhenaton, who preceded Tutankhamen on the throne, was a scholar, a lover of peace, a dreamer and poet. He held that all life was sacred. And when he ascended the throne, he did his best to get rid of the worship of Ammon, a war god, whose priests reeked with bloody sacrifices and whose priests were above all militaristic. He lived before his time. And he died disillusioned, to be followed by Tutankhamen, who at once restored the regime of force and conquest, rebuilding Ammon's shrines and restoring the bloodthirsty priesthood to power.

Two modern monarchs, Frederick III of Prussia and his successor, the ex-Emperor William, are the modern types of these two ancient rulers. Frederick was a peace lover, of liberal, humane views. His wife was one of the first advocates of the higher education of women. He publicly expressed his disapproval of attacks on the Jews. He fostered learning and the arts. He opposed Bismarck's militaristic policy, and there can be little doubt that, had he lived, the World War might have been still nothing but a possibility. But he died, from cancer of the throat, after a reign of only 59 days. And everyone knows how William II, the modern Tutankhamen, at once reversed his policies and set the war god back as head of his pantheon.

A further parallel can be found in a comparison of Tutankhamen's god Ammon and the "old God" of the German militarists. Ammon was at once a local and a universal deity. As Ammon-Re he was a sun god. But as plain Ammon he was the conquering deity who led the Egyptian armies to victory and in whose honor blood flowed in the temples. As a rule, his local aspect was the popular one. And the Pharaohs were mystified by his sons, a notion that originated the idea of Kings as "the Lord's anointed." Also, the records tell us, Ammon was reputed to be virgin-born. Under other names, or nameless, Ammon still appears to rule the modern world. Militarism, fanatical nationalism, ignorance regarding and hatred of other peoples and races are his enduring and apparently indestructible expressions. So, it may be said, the opening of Tutankhamen's tomb has a significance and a lesson for us, if we will see it. His bones and his insignia, his scepter and war weapons are being laboriously unearthed. But his ideas needed no explorers or archeologists to dig out and explain. They have been the moving spirit of the world all through the centuries since he died. Shall they still control?

GOOD NEWS FOR BOOTLEGGERS.

The bootleggers will doubtless rejoice to hear that Federal Prohibition Director Allen intends to cut down the number of whisky prescriptions for medical purposes. This will have the effect of driving all persons deprived of medicinal whisky into the arms of the illegal dispensers, whose trade will thrive accordingly.

Whisky dispensed through the drug stores on prescription is or ought to be good whisky. The reputation, at least, of most bootlegging whisky is bad, and some of the liquor so obtained is dangerous, if not actually poisonous. In the interest of health and public safety, the medical profession ought to have the last say as to how much whisky is needed to combat influenza, pneumonia, diabetes and other diseases for which alcoholic stimulants are prescribed. The opinion of prejudiced laymen enacted into law or rule may be the cause of much suffering and fatality. As a stimulus to bootlegging the dictum of prohibition directors that interferes with medical practice is doubly pernicious.

SENATOR REED'S NIGHTMARE.

Senator Reed opposed the British debt settlement, stating as his objection that the community of interest with Great Britain created by the settlement might draw the United States into war.

Next day the Senator, apparently recovering from his war fright, declared he could force payment from a recalcitrant debtor nation and that one method would be to seize possessions lying near the shores of the United States.

But in the light of a third utterance of the Senator's it is not so difficult to reconcile these two diametrically opposed sentiments as to peace and war. "I believe," he said, "I'd rather cancel our debt than unite our interests with the British Empire for the next 62 years."

This is, by all odds, the strongest of the three expressions. It conveys to us a realization of the Senator's final and solemn conviction that, while war as a general proposition is to be avoided, peace and good relations with Great Britain for three-score-years-and-two would be the supreme calamity.

MUFFLE THE NOISE PESTS.

Now comes the noise cop. Chicago has him and St. Louis needs him. The noise cop's business is to arrest all unnecessary noises and if it cannot be done any other way to arrest the noise pests who make the noises.

To avoid putting additional duties upon the regular policemen all employees of the Chicago health department have been made special policemen and instructed to stop all the unnecessary noises that they hear.

Let there be a momentary blockade, however unavoidable, and the motorists who are compelled to stop set up a great squawking of their horns, which in no wise contributes to the resumption of traffic. And going-clanging by motormen is a disease. It is not unusual for a gong to be kept going the full length of a block with a clear track ahead and no purpose to be served by the clatter. Probably the motormen do it in a measure unconsciously. A noise cop is the best kind of a doctor for that kind of a disease.

Not the least of the evils of the unnecessary noises is that they tend to nullify the purposes of necessary noises. Pedestrians become so accustomed to the constant tooting and clanging that these noises, while wearing away nerves, are heard subconsciously without producing the alertness which warning noises are intended to produce, and when there is necessity for noise it is not heeded and there is an accident. The noise pests should be muffled.

WORTH ALL IT COSTS.

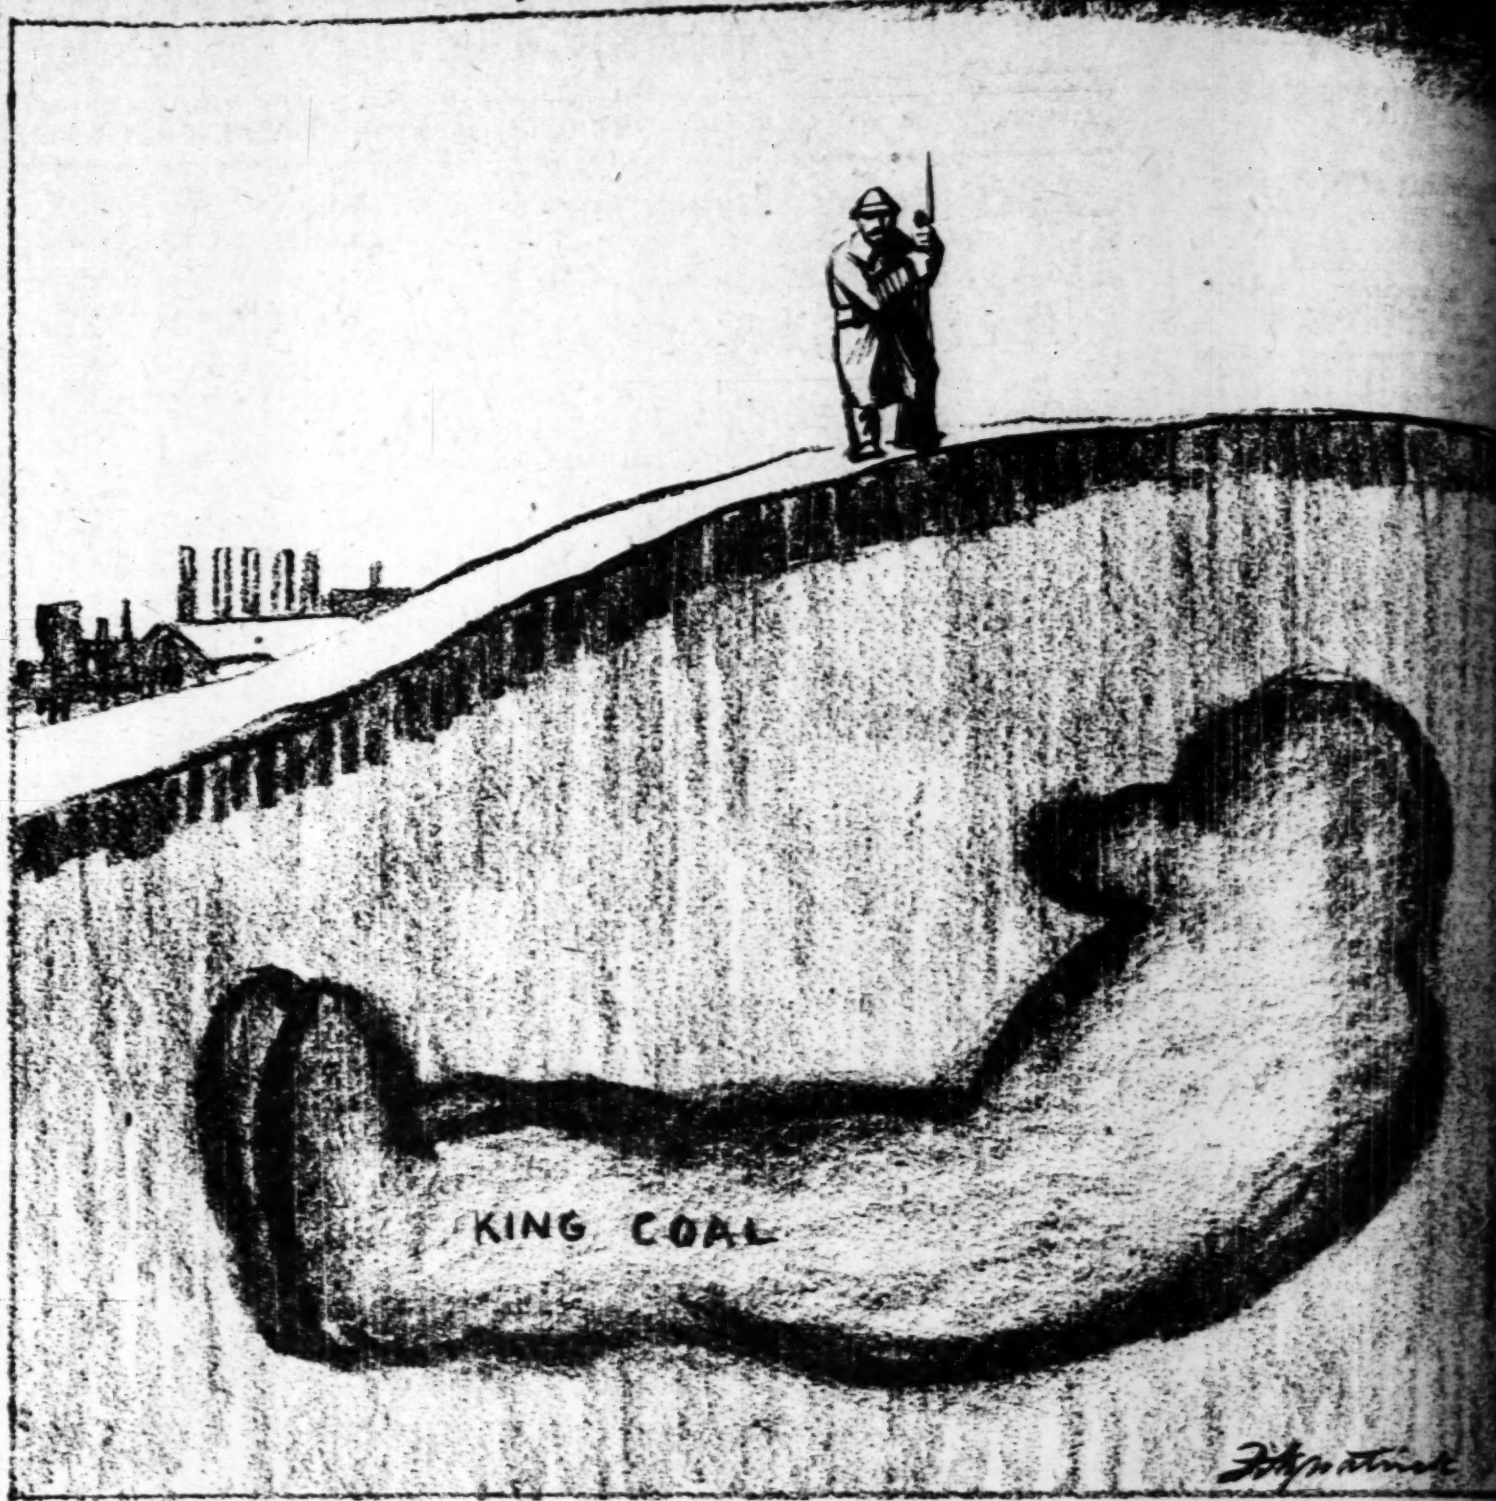

The Illinois Legislature has voted Attorney-General Brundage $75,000 for the expense of continuing the prosecution of the Herrin massacre cases. Whereat the lawless element of Williamson County and the rest of the State will exult and everybody else will rejoice. For this means not only that the effort to punish the Herrin murderers will be continued, but that the powers of the State will be brought to bear whenever and wherever there is a breakdown of county government.

It is fortunate for Illinois and unfortunate for the criminals of the State that the Attorney-General has authority under the extensive common law powers conferred when the office was created, confirmed by a Supreme Court decision, to take a hand at law enforcement in any county of the State, whenever, in his judgment, the local enforcement machinery has been disabled by an outbreak of lawlessness.

There would have been no investigation in Williamson County if it had not been made by the Attorney-General and there would have been no indictments. No convictions have yet been obtained and it may be that none will be obtained, because the State cannot take a change of venue from Williamson County and one Williamson County jury has refused to convict, but the effort is worth all that it has and will cost. Anything less than such an effort would be a surrender to mob lawlessness and an encouragement for its continuance.

ANOTHER BURIED MONARCH.

JUST A MINUTE

By CLARK McADAMS

THE FIRST ROBIN.

A FEATHERED ball he bounds and hops Along the thawing ground; And cheerily, erect, he stops. Still bobbing higher On legs of wire— He bithly sings. And jerks his wings Like some quaint wound-up toy. Yet for me through his song runs a lover-like note.

As the waters that play in some jug's deep throat, In mellow cadences pouring, Tinkling with memories of that time When last he caroled his chant-like rhyme— The mate of his choice adoring. His cheerful chirrup at morn's first peep, From his puffed-out breast brown-red, Tells plain as words, "They only sleep— The hopes we thought were dead." With a sparkling eye And neck away, He pipes the same refrain— Ridding the snow And frost to go— Giving place to the gentle rain. Thus for me his theme holds a promising note. From the Land of Enchantment it seems to me.

THE PASSING OF A PINE TREE.

Until the vandals who grade ground for homesites came along, there was a landmark on Goodfellow avenue, in the northwestern part of St. Louis, that surprised the passerby when first seen, and was certain at all times in its appeal to the emotional side of many. It was a tall, stately pine tree, and stood on a knoll a short way east of that thoroughfare, but in full view from it. When the patches of surrounding undergrowth of unlike species had been cleared away and the deep earth-cash of the excavators drew near, this solitary old field sentinel seemed to take on added height, as silhouetted against a somber November sky. To one who knew its kind in the South and in memories of forest and pineland home stirred, there was pathos and the shadow of tragedy in its approaching end. The tug at the sympathetic heart was akin to that felt in the passing of an old friend in strange surroundings and without attending kin.

When, soon, the lonely tree disappeared and the fresh earth of the leveled terrace left no trace of where it had stood, the bending sky beyond looked empty and cold and the touch of a mist, but real sorrow, came to the traveler of the road who had foreseen its fate and held it in pitying reverence.

JAMES E. GATEWOOD.

George Bernard Shaw, who will not come to this country because he feels we would arrest him for telling the truth, says the British monarchy is only a little joke played upon the people of England by those who control wealth, the real rulers of the land. Deprived of their pageantry, the people would realize their plight, precisely as the cook, deprived of novels transporting her in fancy to a life of ease and elegance, finds her lot intolerable. We imagine G. B. S. would better stay where he is.

Sixty American ships were lost at sea in 1922, not counting the Ship of State.

"Yes, it was love at first sight."

"But why didn't you marry her?"

"I have seen her several times since."—Karlaturen (Christiana).

THE EPICURANS BELIEVED THE GODS TO BE INDIFFERENT CREATURES, KNOWING NOTHING AND CARING LESS ABOUT HUMAN AFFAIRS.

The old Jewish philosopher who wrote the Book of Job made this same point as to God who thereby could not be Billed and some of the others thought, by punishing Job for sinning. The expectations of a two great authorities are always more than it can meet. Thus, having hit an earthquake period early in the present month and predicted another about the middle of the month which has yet to make good, our prophetic contemporary, Hicks' Almanac, has something to say about predicting earthquakes. Some of its readers are not interested in them, not being in regions infested by these phenomena. They think our contemporary should omit reference to them. No doubt one embracing the natural science of this celebrated St. Louis publication has enough to do constantly to keep in mind the whereabouts of the planets, especially Vulcan, not as yet wholly accepted by science, without trying to include phenomena outside of one's own experience. Nevertheless, Hicks' sticks to its earthquake predictions, reminding its readers that there are patrons of the almanac in earthquake zones who require this service. What was beneath the dignity of the pagan gods and too much of a detail for the God of Job is no trouble at all for our contemporary. Our doughty and all-inclusive oracle is not for some of the people, as we sometimes fear we are, but for all of them. Its dominion is all creation and some parts not yet formally added to creation. Not even its readers can confine its usefulness to a territory less than that. Bravo, Hicks! If we all stood thus definitely, uncoined by our readers, what a press we were!

Sir: Do you recall that laugh of Mr. Bennett's in "Who Gets Slapped?" I finally accomplished it. For the benefit of all others whom Mr. Bennett accused of intelligence, let me hint (and that is all I intend to do) that Mr. Bennett's secret lies in the throwing back of his head until it is really somewhere between the shoulder blades.

The family thinks I'm "bugs." Ha-a-a-a-a! PERSISTENCE.

A member of Parliament wants to levy a tax of $5 a head on all American tourists entering the British Isles. $2 a head on them when they depart. That would be putting a much more flattering price on the heads of some people than we would be willing to put on them at home.

QUALITY OF LIFE.

LIFE is not like a church service. Neither can any future life be like any church service. Nor is life like the proceedings in a courtroom. And if there were any final judgment there would have to be a further final judgment. Seeing that man is what he is. Life is an adventure. And if it is to be everlasting it will be an everlasting adventure. And your smugness and my timidity will not carry us far. The real death is the incapacity for further adventure.

Consider the lilies and other flowers. Creation in them appears to us to be most admirable. But flowers are unashamed flaunters of sexuality.

Oh, Puck, abolish the flowers.

If you would change us and creation to your bitter taste.

The flowerlike in humanity offends your sunshy vision.

And your only idea of adventure is emasculation of the nature.

But life is against you.

Why not die, as you desire of us, and let us live?

H. M. WILLIAMS.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

WAGES AND WIVES.

From the New York Herald.

THE Woman's party at Albany is preparing a problem that would give Solomon cause for trepidation if he were compelled to pass upon it. One of the bills presented by the female party will give wives the right to demand "wages" salary. We are left to infer that the popular interpretations of the two words will hold, so that salary will imply the larger income. What basis and by whom will the wages or salary of wives be fixed? How shall it be decided whether a wife is entitled to mere wages or to a salary? Will there be a union or wives to fix the minimum scale taking account of the domestic duties of the wife? Will there be a bureau of the New York home promises to become as formidable as the problem of adjusting the twisted economies of Europe. One thing is certain, there will be no rush of applicants for jobs in the court, bureau or whatever body will have to fix the matter of wives' compensation. This bill should be passed. Looking back to the days when the wives made all of the clothes and did about seven-eighths of the work that kept the family alive, it seems not at all for the husband of that era that there was no talk of wages or salary for wives. A seriously considered this new scheme in the economics of the home suggests the query as to what effect it would have on the marriage problem. It is man has along had the advantage in the partnership as life has worked out, what would this far-flung undertaking have on marriage with selfish man, considering the fact that in recent years he hasn't been breaking his neck to become a family man?

THE ROENTGEN RAY.

From the New York Evening Post.

OTHER scientists before Roentgen, among them Crookes, had for years been discharging electricity through vacuum tubes, probably producing X-rays without being aware of them. It was Roentgen, working with just such highly evacuated tubes, was suddenly called from his room. Still glowing, he laid one of the tubes on a table which he had been reading, in which lay a book, antique key used as a bookmark. Underneath this book there chanced to be a photographic plate holder which had been prepared for the day's outing. Later on when some of these plates were developed a shadow of the antique key appeared upon the fateful plate. Roentgen, for the source of the invisible light which was responsible for this unique phenomenon, he was staged the scene and energized the vacuum tube on the preceding day. The shadow again appeared on the plate, and the Roentgen ray was discovered, thenceforth to illumine the sciences of medicine, physics and chemistry. It was believed that these rays represented some manifestation of energy. However, it has been shown that they differ from ordinary light only in wave length. Visible light rays are measured in fifty-thousandths of an inch, but Roentgen rays are only millionths or billionths of an inch in wave length. Today there is a new branch of surgical or internal medicine which does not make daily use of the Roentgen ray. Like the invention of the microscope, it has brought us the vision of a world too minute to be naked eye to penetrate. In this way it has gained exact knowledge of the condition of the lungs, so vital in tuberculosis; of the urinary tract, so essential in kidney and bladder diseases; of tumors, broken bones, foreign bodies, and desirability it has become indispensable for diagnosis. "Hidden" abscesses as well as for checking on treatment. Fundamental physical and chemical research into the nature of matter, the constant use of the Roentgen ray, as is the case in the newly accepted electron conception of atoms.

THE TORCH BEARERS' BRING A BRIEF LIGHT

Elimination of Wit Spitters and Then Flickers Out in Comedy's Last Act.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

IT was most inconsiderate to the house for Jim Sheppard to die of heart disease, having first given his wife the funniest look just on the eve of her debut as heroine in a one-act tragedy under the management of Mrs. J. Duro Pampinelli. The majestic directress, thought at first it would serve him right if Jim Sheppard went on as usual, the evening following the funeral. What a ghastly death compared to the quantity of art! But on further reflection, as the plebeian public might misunderstand, it was decided to eat smirking Mrs. Fred Ritter in the part.

So in the opening act of "The Torch Bearers," on view this week at the Shubert-Jefferson, a rehearsal is about in Mrs. Ritter's drawing room. Thither resort the small-town stage-struck—Florence McCrickett of the crimson corset, Mr. Hoffesfrose, the posturing leading man; Mrs. Gaudier, the local esthetic, with horn-rimmed spectacles, Nelly Fell, a glady widow enlisted for promptness; Teddy Spearling, the pallid juvenile; and Mr. Twiller, with a genius for villain's roles.

La Pampinelli, stout, stately and autocratic, drills them in the subtleties of dramatic art. She is an authority, for she has not read a paper before a club on "The Distinction Between Method and Technique in Acting," she enjoys upon the emotional Miss McCrickett. "More nonchalance, more sautoire faire," is another of her exhortations. "Nothing is so disconcerting," she postulates, "as to trip over the doorkill when coming on the stage. Only the greatest dramatic instinct can overcome such a mishap. To trip when going off is not nearly so bad."

During the rehearsal, Mrs. Ritter confronts in her husband's office the siren who is "vamping" him, and emits a blood-curdling cacophonization. Her own husband, a traveling salesman, unexpectedly home from the road, is watching the performance. Suddenly he pitches headlong down the stairs. He was unconscious, the physician reports later, before he hit the floor.

The second act takes us backstage at Horticultural Hall, where the public performance is on. Here the satire of the first act descends into farce. Every respectable man who has a wife, Mrs. Ritter trips when going on the stage and when leaving, besides falling over the rug. Lines are forgotten, and the promptness has lost the plot. The villain's mustache falls off, and when he claps it back, only half of it adheres. A piece of scenery falls on Mrs. Fell.

The weeping Mrs. Sheppard, in widow's weeds, wails mournfully over her husband's heartlessness in dying just at the moment to deprive her of her big opportunity. For fear of gossip, she hid herself in the top row and kept her face so completely hidden that she accepted an invitation to take a curtain call with the others. And alas, when Mrs. Pampinelli orders the cast into the wings so that she may take the curtain call alone, a guy rope of the curtain breaks, and it cannot be raised.

In the meantime, the sensitive Mr. Spearling has fainted, and an uproar in the audience proves to have been due to a special introduction of the swoon. It was Mrs. Ritter's husband.

Home or Career?

The third act takes us back to Mrs. Ritter's home. Mrs. Pampinelli has hastened ahead to surprise her leading woman with a collection of floral offerings, which bear a resemblance to funeral pieces, such as anchors and crosses. The directress hides behind a curtain, and hears Mr. Ritter utter savagely uncompromising remarks concerning her ignorance. She flares out upon him, and urges Mrs. Ritter to leave at once for New York, where, with a letter of introduction from herself, she will be sure to be seized at once by David Belasco for a leading role.

When Mrs. Ritter tearfully chooses home in lieu of career, the directress stalks forth with the exclamation: "There will still be a collection of husbands as a thing of the past!"

This comedy begins on a high level of wit and irony, sinks in the second act into burlesque and falls alarmingly in the third into feebleness and absence of direction. The author, George Kelly, brother of Walter Kelly, the famous "Virginia Judge" of vaudeville, seems to have used up his inspiration in one act.

One is not particularly concerned over the justice or injustice of a salary. It may, however, be pointed out that it was the "Little Theater" which gave an opportunity to playwrights like Shaw, Molnar and O'Neill. The Provincetown Players and the Washington Square Players, the latter of which grew into the Theater Guild, are responsible for the notable upsurge of theatrical work this season in New York. More attacks the education of women in "Les Femmes Savantes." But the play has lived, despite the injustice of its aim, because it is a work of sustained art. Such an opportunity was offered in "The Torch Bearers," and the author grasped it by the forelock. But after a few minutes he let go. Last night's drama, moderately large, was much amused.

THE TORCH BEARERS' BRING A BRIEF LIGHT

Continuation of Wit Sputters and Then Flickers out in Comedy's Last Act.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.
It was most inconsiderate to the audience for Jim Sheppard to die of heart disease, having first given his wife the funniest look, just in the eve of her debut as heroine in a one-act tragedy, under the auspices of the "Little Theater" movement. Mme. J. Duro Pampinelli, the majestic directress, thought that it would serve him right if she Sheppard went on anyhow, the evening following the funeral. What is more death compared to the comedy of art? But on further reflection, as the plebeian public might misunderstand, it was decided to omit smirking Mrs. Fred Ritter in the part.

Further resort to the small-town stage struck—Florence McCrickett of the crimson ciffure, Mr. Hossfrosche, the posturing leading man; Mr. Spindler, the local aesthete, with horn-rimmed spectacles; Nelly Fall, a giddy widow enlisted for promptness; Teddy Spearling, the pallid juvenile; and Mr. Twiller, with a genius for villain's roles.

La Pampinelli, stout, stately and authoritative, drills them in the lines of dramatic art. She is an authority, for she has not read a paper before a club on "The Distinction Between Method and Technique in Acting." Just a half-soupçon of a year, she enjoins upon the emotional Miss McCrickett, "More nonchalance, more savoir faire." It is another of her exhortations. "Nothing is so disconcerting," she pontificates, "as to trip over the foot of a gown, or to come on the stage only the great dramatic instinct can overcome such a mishap. To trip when going off is not nearly so bad."

Handsome Falls Inevitable.
During the rehearsal, Mrs. Ritter confronts in her husband's office the siren who is "vamping" him, and emits a blood-curdling exclamation. The weeping Mrs. Sheppard, an widow's weeds, appears to mourn over her husband's heartlessness in doing just at the moment to deprive her of her big opportunity. For fear of gossip, she hid herself in the top box and kept her veil down. But she accepts with alacrity an invitation to take a curtain call with the others. And alas, when Mme. MISS MEYER TO WED DR. CLIPNER TONIGHT

Ceremony Will Be Performed at Church of the Unity by Rev. Dr. Dodson.

Miss Almee Elise Meyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Meyer of the St. Regis Apartments, will become the bride this evening of Dr. George A. Clipner, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Clipner of 5346 McPherson avenue. The ceremony will be performed at the church of the Unity at 8:30 o'clock by the Rev. Dr. George R. Dodson, and there is to be an informal gathering of close friends and relatives at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Meyer immediately afterward.

Pastel shades will predominate in the gowns of the bride's attendants. The bridesmaids, Miss Norma Hermann, Miss Hilda Mahley, Miss Marjorie Siffel and Miss Helen McFarland, will wear taffeta; Misses Siffel and Hermann in peach blow, and Misses Mahley and McFarland in orchid bodices and bouffant skirts, trimmed with broad bands of velvet ribbon to match, and a similar band encircles the boat neck and forms tiny sleeves. Their flowers are to be pink snapdragons and mignonette. Mrs. Harry Hirschel of Washington, Mo., matron of honor, is to be gowned in delicate pink chiffon, with pointed draperies and a girle of French flowers entwined with silver ribbon which forms a small train. Her flowers are snapdragons and lavender sweetpeas. Miss Lucille Papendick, maid of honor, will wear Nile green chiffon, trimmed with panels of silver net, one of which is looped under the hem at one side and two others falling into twin trains at the other side. Her flowers are pink snapdragons and lavender sweetpeas.

Unlike the flesh colorings which the brides of today are combining with the white of their wedding gowns, Miss Meyer has added touches of pale green. The gown is white satin, made on long clinging lines. The skirt draperies, one of which is faced with green chiffon, are confined at the waist by a pearl girle and a pearl ornament surrounded with orange blossoms at the side holds the drapery in place. Spanish lace, brought from Brazil by Mrs. Meyer, has been used in fashioning the court train. It is bound with satin lined with green chiffon. The tulle veil will be held by a duchesse lace coronet. Her bridal bouquet will be orchids, roses and valley lilies. Hildegarde Meyer, sister of the bride, and Hermoine Hamel, are to be flower girls. Their frocks are white Canton crepe adorned with pastel shaded ribbon and they will carry baskets of rose petals.

Ray E. White is to be best man and Harold Stiers, Elmer Kerchoff, Roy Neher, Dr. Alfred Marquand and Robert Meyer, Jr., brother of the bride-elect, groomsmen.

HAZEL WHITMORE IS BACK IN "THE BRAT" AFTER WEEK REST

Virginia Springer, Missouri Girl, Makes Her Debut With Comedy This Week.
Hazel Whitmore of the Woodward Players, after a week's absence from the cast, is seen again this week in the title role of "The Brat," the twenty-second week's offering of the company at the Garrick Theater. The light, but merry, comedy by Maude Fulton seemed to be raised almost above its own merit last night by the spirited performance accorded it. A fair-sized audience was kept in nearly continuous laughter by the situations that arise in a young author's elegant household when he brings a waif from the streets into the family circle in order to study her type. The young miss slightly misunderstands his intentions and so do some of his feminine admirers.

Maude Franklin is seen as the author, Florence Leslie as his aristocratic mother and John Warner as the ne'er-do-well younger brother. The latter's interpretation of the company at the Garrick Theater, the first act was probably the most north-provoking and convincing episode of the performance.

Virginia Springer, a Missouri girl, makes her debut with the company this week as Angela, a young society woman who traps the writer into a proposal by a skillful appeal to his vanity. Her playing was well received.

"THE GOLD DIGGERS" ARE A LEADEN CREW

Blatant Speeches About Money Characterize Hopwood Play at American.

By CARLOS F. HURD.
OR men of the sort shown in "The Gold Diggers," the women there pictured are suitable companions, and the feminine financial methods which they demonstrate are not open to serious objection. Avery Hopwood, of boulevard fame, is the author of "The Gold Diggers," which at the American Theater this week. Considering other works of his, Hopwood showed a remarkable restraint in fashioning the dialogue of this comedy, which is practically without shock speeches. Contrasts of character are also lacking, as all the figures in the play who count for anything stand consistently on the same low level. Toward the end, some of the characters are signs of actual human feelings, but the men are hopeless.

Get-the-Coin Philosophy.
The essential incident of the play, a champagne-motivated dialogue in the second act, and the refractory and concluding matter needed with it, could be put into a vaudeville sketch which would leave plenty of time for trained seals and the classical dancers. It has been made into a rather long three-act play by a series of apartment scenes in which chorus girls, some of them in negligee, dispose of sundry packs of cigarettes and utter such sentiments as:

When the men lose interest, the girls lose capital.
My idea of matrimony ends in alimony.
It's the tired business men that make you tired.
Men are brutes—oh, Lord, how I love them!
You have to work the men, or they work you.
How can we escape the men, when so many of them follow us in touring cars?

There is quite a lot of this talk in the first act before a man appears, and then it is just a colorless figure, Wally, who has $5,000.00 if he keeps the audience in paroxysms of mirth. Just how he keeps from killing his musical director, who he "playfully" hits on the head with a baseball bat, gasps and other heavy missiles, is a mystery.

Karyl Norman, the "Craze Fashion Plate," outdoor Julian Elling in aping feminine characteristics and wearing gorgeous gowns; Percy Bronson and Winnie Baldwin present themselves in a highly amusing play.

Let No Rich Man Escape.
The apartment is that of Miss Jerry.

ry, most successful professionally of the group of stage girls, and the most concise in expressing the motives which actuate them all in their dealings with men. Vi lives with her, and Jerry undertakes to remove the objections of obdurate Uncle Steve, who proves to be not so old, to the marriage of Wally and Vi. Jerry lets Uncle Steve think that she is the one whom Wally wishes to wed, and she is thus enabled to entrap the wealthy Steve for herself.

Bessie Steve, whose chief function around the apartment is to hand out yellow-backed bills at Jerry's orders, masculinity is represented by a lawyer, whom the biggest and most resolute of the chorus crowd annexes, and by a rich roue, who wishes to give Jerry a town house and a country house, but makes no mention of a wedding ceremony; also by several hangers-on of the said spender, who appear at a "party."

Gertrude Vanderbilt appears in the role of Jerry, which was first played by Ina Claire. Her best acting was in the scene where she pretends to drink champagne, while playing Uncle Steve with the same liquid, and simulates its effect. Lorraine Lally was a dainty funny as "The Spirit of the Ages," "The Spirit of the Ages," Daisy Rudd, as a "broiler," also won laughs by her portrayal of the effects of horseback riding. A good-sized audience saw the opening performance.

BILL AT ORPHEUM IS VARIED AND OF EXCEPTIONAL QUALITY

Herbert Williams, Karyl Norman and Others Make Up Interesting Program.
Little in the multifarious field of vaudeville is omitted from this week's program at the Orpheum. Every act presented is of exceptional quality. From the time the curtain ascends, disclosing Meehan's leaping greynoids, until it goes down after the final number, "A Night on Broadway," the audience appreciates the fact that the entire bill is one of headliners.

Herbert Williams, in his "ruffined" comedy, "From Soup to Nuts," is just as funny as he was six seasons ago, although he has not changed a line of his original act. As "Vilmer Warshinsky," the Bulgarian military piano virtuoso, he keeps the audience in paroxysms of mirth. Just how he keeps from killing his musical director, who he "playfully" hits on the head with a baseball bat, gasps and other heavy missiles, is a mystery.

VOTE NOT TO ACCEPT
PASTOR'S RESIGNATION

Members of Belleville Congregation Called On in Controversy With Board Members.

The congregation of St. Paul's Evangelical Church at Belleville, by a vote of 283 to 42, yesterday refused to accept the resignation of the pastor, the Rev. Otto Pessel, which was tendered two weeks ago when E. P. Leuschner, president of the board of trustees of the church, announced during services that he considered a collection being taken in the church for the Near East Relief was a "hold-up."

After the congregational meeting yesterday Leuschner called a special meeting of the board at which his resignation and those of three other members of the board were tendered, but were not accepted.

Walter J. Kohl and five other members of the board, composed of 10 men, sought to prevent the pastor's resignation from going before the congregation and induced the pastor to agree to withdraw it, providing the board desired him to do so. Kohl said that seven members of the board favored that procedure, but that Leuschner insisted that the resignation be voted on by the congregation.

The Rev. Mr. Pessel has been pastor of the church 17 years. Several members of the congregation made speeches urging refusal to accept the resignation.

Valentine Hirth, a member of the congregation, said that friction between some members of the board and the pastor was indicated in January when the secretary's annual report praised the janitor for work during the past year, but did not mention the pastor. "Insult was added to injury," Hirth said, "when the board later voted to amend the report by inserting a paragraph stating that the pastor 'be thanked for work he should have done during the year.'"

In addition to Leuschner the board members who tendered resignations are Anton Peters, Edward Schaab and John Bieker, the secretary. Schaab said he resigned because "someone told me I couldn't keep to myself what happened in the board meetings." The remaining six board members decided not to act on the resignations of the four at this time, hoping to adjust the differences.

COSTLIER STREET PAVEMENT

IS FAVORED BY SERVICE BOARD

Sections of Two Streets Will Be Used as Experiment With Material New to St. Louis.

The Board of Public Service at the instance of President Kinsey and Director of Streets and Sewers Fisk today recommended the resurfacing of sections of two streets with Willite asphalt paving, to cost about $23,800. The same work with ordinary asphalt would cost approximately $20,700, the board estimated.

President Kinsey and Director Fisk recently made a trip to Los Angeles and after inspecting streets there paved with the Willite patented process, declared it to be superior to ordinary asphalt paving.

The work recommended is to be on Loughborough avenue, from Broadway to Virginia avenue, and on Channing avenue, from Laclede avenue to the Lindell cut-off. President Kinsey informed the board that these would be good streets on which to test the Willite paving as Loughborough avenue, at a steep grade and Channing avenue, at the point designated, has very heavy traffic.

The board also recommended resurfacing of several streets with another new paving, Kentucky rock asphalt, which is cheaper than Willite, but more expensive than ordinary asphalt. The board recommends that this material be used in paving Quincy street, from Gravois avenue to Brunswick street, at a cost estimated at $22,000; Wellington Court, from Leanington to Manhattan avenues, $20,000; and Gressell avenue, from Goodfellow avenue to Penrose street, $16,300.

INQUEST INTO HOTEL DEATH

An inquest will be held into the case of Frank S. Bronson, 45, a salesman, who died suddenly in his room at Melbourne Hotel, Grand and Lindell boulevards, late Saturday night, after he had collapsed while talking to his wife, Nellie.

Doctors who attended Bronson said they were not able to state the cause of death. Police reported Bronson had defied the lobby to cash a draft and on returning to his room collapsed. He died three hours later without regaining consciousness.

Huggins Unwilling to Weaken Hurling Staff To Get Eddie Collins

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—The New York Yankees, who came to town yesterday on one of the coldest breezes of the winter, were not nearly as cold as his attitude toward the big deal for Eddie Collins, who has been talked about all winter.

"I won't break up my pitching staff. I can't see the sense of that. I hope the deal can be made, but I would be suicide to break ourselves in the box."

Of course, he referred to the repeated demands of the White Sox traders that Walter Hoyt or Sam Jones be included in the players sent from New York.

Present got the idea that the chances for the trade were going through tomorrow at the American League meeting in Philadelphia are slim indeed.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Six hold-out members of the New York Giants pitching staff were missing today, when the advance guard of battery men entrained for Marlin, Tex., preliminary to establishment of the regular training camp at San Antonio.

John Barnes, Jack Scott and Art Helt, twirling stars of the last year's series, were the regulars who did not report as a result of the club's edict barring all unassigned players from training camps.

Virgil Johnson, Bill Ryan and Jack Bentley, who were purchased from Baltimore, also remained behind.

McQuillan was the only regular pitcher in the party which also included "Pitchers" Clinton Blume, George Schaefer and Fred Hamman; pitcher Alex Gaston and Joe Casey, veteran battery coach.

The squad will be joined at St. Louis tomorrow night by "Cozy" Dolan, coach in charge of the Marlin camp, and several other recruits.

Twenty moundmen, the largest squad ever assembled by Manager John McGraw, are on the roster of the Champions.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12.—The New York Yanks will have to moderate their demands on Joe Judge, who strings a trifling more if they wish to do business with Kid Gleason on the subject of Eddie Collins' proposed transfer from Chicago, according to the statement of the Kid himself just before the opening of the American League schedule meeting today.

"The deal, as it lays, is colder than the weather," quote the Kid. "The Yanks have made us several propositions but none of them have been acceptable to me. They not only want Collins but several other good ball players as well. They want to know for what they are willing to give in return."

The board of directors of the American League met in the forenoon and ratified the schedule for the coming season. It was said the board considered no other business.

The league took no action on the suggestion of Clark Griffith of Washington that home runs be standardized as an agreement could be reached on it.

No action was taken on the suggestion to number the players. The league went on record as being opposed to registering hits and errors on the ball park score boards on the ground that it would be an aid to gambling.

It was announced that the reported formation of the new American League, given publicity in New York last week, was not discussed.

A suggestion made by United States Senator George Watson (Penn.) that the American League Baseball monument be erected in Washington symbolize the national game of baseball rather than organized baseball, was adopted.

ILLNESS KEEPS SISLER FROM ATTENDING MEETING

Because of the illness of one of his children and a slight indisposition on his own part, George Sisler of the Browns did not go to Philadelphia to attend the annual meeting of the sporting writers' fraternity which is scheduled to take place this evening. Sisler was to have been a speaker at the gathering.

A slight cold has incapacitated Sisler and he is under a doctor's care. This is the second time in a few months the Browns star has been ill from a cold.

WALKER PLANNING TRIPS TO GATHER FOREIGN KALE

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Talk that Jack Dempsey will go to Europe before spring comes around is getting more and more pointed. Dempsey needs a fight or two to put him in shape for more important bouts, later in the summer, in this country, and it seems a certainty he will get none hereabouts.

Jimmy Nolan Injured, Scullins Are Weakened for Western Title Final

National Champions Hard Pressed to Fill Gap in Defense for Game With Arden—Hoovers Hold Scullins Scoreless—Vespers and Millers Tie.

By Dent McSkimming.

The reckless abandon with which St. Louis soccer stars play is taking its toll in injuries. Yesterday, in the double-header at High School Field, not less than six men were more or less seriously hurt. Among them was Jimmy Nolan, star halfback of the champion Scullins.

Nolan, playing for the first time in four weeks, so aggravated a knee injury that he will be unable to compete in the national championship semifinal, next Sunday, and may not be able to play in the final next month.

The Scullins tied the Hoovers yesterday, 0 to 0. The Ben Millers and the Vespers tied in the other game, 2 to 2.

The Ben Miller-Vesper game far surpassed the Scullin-Hoover match in the attractiveness of the play. The reason was that both the Vespers and the Millers played sound football. There was not a goal's difference between these two teams, although League and the other trails the procession.

Speed Aids Vespers.
The Vespers made excellent use of their superior speed in the first half and took a slight advantage in the attack. Rankow, in goal for the Millers, was kept busy. He made a fine recovery on a shot by Bergin, then cleared two from Brannon's foot.

The Miller halfbacks were excellent defenders, but when they came out with the ball they failed to place it well for their forwards and so the attack against the Miller goal was back into the Miller goal again. Quinn was the only Miller halfback who fed his forwards well.

After a sustained attack the Vespers kept pressing. Brannon got past Quinn and shot by Rankow, who had come out to block the kick. The half ended 1 to 0, with the Vespers leading.

Miller's Play Improves.
In the second half the Millers played a more orderly game and their persistent attacks resulted in numerous shots and corner kicks. Marre, limping with a bad knee, was not so fast as he might have been. The bulk of the close-in shooting fell to Dunn and Rankow. The latter was his classiest with Hack, the 40-year-old forward, who has played in two national cup finals for St. Louis, was making his first appearance in nearly two years.

With six minutes to play, the Millers tied the score. McHenry's cross from the extreme right wing found Marre ready with his head. "Hap" added the ball to Rankow's foot and the center forward passed to Dunn and bowled over Goaltender La Pepper by grabbing him. Rankow's Vespers proved themselves anything but quitters when they whirled about and swept through the Miller defense, again defeating Marre. A shot by McCarthy, a low drive to the right corner, it was Brannon's defense, again defeating Marre. A shot by McCarthy, a low drive to the right corner, it was Brannon's defense, again defeating Marre.

Time was growing precious when the Millers turned to their task of again equalizing the score. Their opportunity came when Ryser, had pressed by Marre, fouled the Miller defense, again defeating Marre. A shot by McCarthy, a low drive to the right corner, it was Brannon's defense, again defeating Marre.

Both Strong on Defense.
The second game was marked by a good defensive play on both sides. Pepper and Vaughn, fullbacks for the Hoovers, were every bit as strong as Brady and Bentley for the Scullins. Tommy O'Leary, the Hoovers' center, hurt his knee in practice and was unable to play.

O'Leary, a former Scullin star, who has played in two national cup finals for St. Louis, was making his first appearance in nearly two years. During which time he took such good care of his twisted left knee that he is now apparently ready for steady work. He is not eligible to play for the Scullins in future cup games.

says she has received in a letter an offer of $250-

"to put over successfully a certain big affair of the proposition had nothing to do with Congress-

Wall Street News and Comment —SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—The stock market today presented a series of conflicting movements. After an opening at higher prices the market ran into realizing sales which continued to press the list until late in the afternoon, when new issues were taken up, and prices hardened all around. The final tone was steady.

The Bond Market.

In some spots the bond market was very strong today and in others heavy. It was narrow as to general fluctuations and it was found difficult to absorb substantial blocks of offerings except at concessions. The strength of some of the industrial stocks, notably the coppers, was reflected in very much higher prices for the Anaconda 6s and 7s which sold at premiums over the issue price of respectively 1 1/2 and 4 1/2 points and also in Chile Copper convertibles. There was less manifestation of interest in the sugar issues, which had their run-up a week ago.

Railroad bonds were quiet and about as they left off the end of last week. The fact that there is not likely to be an extra session of Congress which would postpone for at least nine months any action inimical to the transportation act should eventually be felt in prices for speculative railroad bonds it was claimed in one quarter. The Louisville &
Nashville has just sold an issue of $20,000,000 4 1/2 per cent equipment trust certificates on about a 5 per cent basis. Foreign government bonds were steady except for the Dutch East Indies 6s. Liberty bonds were reactionary.

IRREGULAR RANGE TO COTTON PRICES AT NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—The cotton market opened unchanged to 1/8 points over with near months relatively firm on continued covering by March shorts or trade reserved. It seemed, however, that the advance since last week had eased the technical situation to some extent and the later market was easier under realizing or selling pressures, which was promoted by lower later months than expected and reports of continued good weather in the South. March continued relatively firm but came off 1/8 point shortly after the call, or 19 points net lower, while later months showed a loss of 10 to 25 points, with May selling at 25.60 and July at 25.00 during the early trading.

Trade interests seemed willing to buy March at about 32 points under May, and the demand for the near months, covered with further scattered covering in later deliveries, gave the market a fair degree of firmness during the middle of the morning.
May rallied from 25.60 to 25.80 and July from 25.00 to 25.10, but this advance was not fully maintained, and the market was quiet at midday, with the active month-ter cables reported some dull but steady with prices quiet and firm.

Trading was very quiet during the middle of the afternoon and about the only feature was the relative firmness of March contract as a result of scattered selling and further trade buying. March sold up to 25.85, making a new high price for the day and a net advance of 8 points, while later months were about 1 to 2 points lower, with May selling at 25.77 around 5 o'clock.

THE GIRL IN THE CORNER APARTMENT

By MAY CHRISTIE

Copyright, 1922, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.
XXXVI.—SPRING FLOWERS.

THE CHARACTERS.
CYNTHIA BRENT, country girl, living in a New York apartment she has inherited from an old lady she once befriended.
RUBY ALLISON, her gay and frivolous friend.
ALEX KERR, Ruby's fiancé.
QUENTIN GRAY, an artist friend of Ruby's.
AUNT ELLEN, who keeps house for Cynthia.
MURRAY STEWART, for whom Cynthia is working as a stenographer.
MRS. WAKELAND, friend and rich client of Stewart's, who takes a fancy to Cynthia.
VIOLET JERROLD, friend of Murray's.

TODAY'S INSTALLMENT.
MURRAY STEWART did not know that Ruby Allison, his late secretary, had spoken of him as a "woman-bater." If he had heard the phrase applied to him, he would not have minded much.

It wasn't true, however. But it was a fact that he had avoided girls. Absorbed in work, he had had no place for them in his scheme of things. He had never contemplated marrying, as most men do. But now Cynthia Brent had crossed his path. Not merely crossed it, but remained stationary, where he could see her every day, and every hour of the day, if he so willed it.

The image of her pale, pretty little face, with the entrancing dark eyes, rose up before him in the taxi as he sped towards the railway station. He found himself wishing that business had not taken him out of town today. Cynthia had looked almost startled when he had told her that he was going away.

But her looks had brightened wonderfully when he had announced that he would be back the following morning. What was she doing now, he wondered.

He hoped that the shifty-eyed, rather good-looking fellow who had come to meet her at the office once wasn't hanging around.

Was there anything in that "after"?

He had thought so at the time, and it had worried him. The fact that he was worried had worried him still further, strange to say. It showed him to what extent Cynthia filled his mind.

What a heavenly afternoon it was! It wouldn't be businesslike, of course, and it might not be "correct," but how wonderful if he had given the girl a half-holiday in order to go out with himself, Murray Stewart, for a long ramble somewhere in the sweet countryside!

Van Cortlandt Park, for instance. The lilacs and rhododendrons would be blooming there, and the whole place a blaze of glorious color and heavy with perfume.

Was he in love with Cynthia? Was this odd, worrying, tantalizing feeling really what the poet fellows had sung about for centuries? Was it love?

"Hang it all, the spring sunshine and breezes have got into my very blood!" said he aloud, sotto voce, as the taxi bumped along.

He leaned out of the window and called to the driver to stop, for he had seen an old, old woman in a sailor hat and shawl wheeling a cart of yellow daffodils along the street.

He waved to her. She came alongside the vehicle, bowing and grinning in the servile manner of old women who have warm to sell.

"Lovely daffodils, sir! Only 30 cents a bunch, sir! And lilacs—six for a quarter! Lovely lilacs!" She pushed a heap of fragrant narcissus under his chin as he leaned out of the taxi window.

With shining eyes, the old woman lifted the whole, scented bale of flowers from off the little cart, till her arms were full. The young man must be just a trifle mad, but she would see she got her money. "Eight dollars, sir. Here you are!"

She pushed the fragrant, wet mass through the window, and Murray Stewart caught the flowers. He paid her, and the taxi drove away.

"Yes, the spring has got into my blood, all right," he reiterated, burying his nose in the blooms that were like rays of sunshine, "but what on earth shall I do with these?"

Send them to Cynthia Brent, of course, a little god of love informed him, grinning impishly.

When he reached the station he got out and paid the driver. Then, shyly, he remarked: "Look here, there's a whole bale of flowers inside your car. You might take them to Miss Cynthia Brent!"

"He gave the girl's address—"and see that she gets them, please, but don't give my name. Just say they're from a—friend of hers."

Thrusting some coins into the astonished taxi driver's hand, the young man strode off into the busy railway station.

The driver scratched his head, and stared after the retreating figure.

"Take 'em to Miss Cynthia Brent!"—he repeated the address to himself—"but don't give my name, please." Then: "But what the dickens is his name? He never told me. Guess the man's crazy." He broke into a chuckle. "But I'll take 'em, all the same, in case he's got my number, and there might be trouble. Besides, he's paid me well."

He backed his car round and drove off. If his ears hadn't been so dulled by the traffic of the noisy streets, he might have heard the happy laughter of the little god of love!

Five New Ways to Prepare Delicious Jellied Dainties

By Jeannette Young Norton

JELLIED foods are not only appetizing in appearance, but they are also very tasty. Seasoning means a great deal in this branch of cookery—more than most cooks seem to realize—for there is something about the jellifying process that absorbs seasoning.

Another important thing in jellifying is to choose the right mould. Small or individual moulds are the most attractive in serving. All moulds should be wet with cold water before the jelly is turned into them.

Jellied Chicken.
Select a young, tender chicken, weighing from two and a half to three pounds. Have the sinews drawn from the legs and singe, clean and joint the bird. Then boil it until it is very tender. Drain, cool slightly, then remove the bones, and throwing them back with the trimmings into the water in which the chicken was boiled. Add a chopped onion, half a bay leaf, pepper, salt, some chopped celery, two cloves and six raisins. Boil this mixture until it is reduced to two and a half cups.

Then stir in a tablespoonful of gelatin powder that has been dissolved in a little cold water. When all is blended, season the broth well and strain it. Wet a mould and lay the chicken in, putting in a sliced, hard-boiled egg, a few capers and a few pieces of truffle. Then pour the broth over the chicken and set it to harden. Serve on lettuce leaves with tartar sauce and garnish with parsley.

Jellied, Deviled Eggs.
Boil hard as many eggs as there are to be served. Cool and shell and cut them lengthwise, remove the yolks carefully and devild them. Add pepper, salt, a little sugar, a little Worcestershire sauce and enough melted butter to soften them, or else good mayonnaise. Fill the eggs and press them together. Cut a little off the heavy ends, so that the eggs stand upright in little cups or moulds that have been wet with cold water. Have ready a little clear lemon gelatin. After filling the cups around and over the egg, set them to harden. These eggs make pretty garnishes to use with fish dishes and jellied chicken.

Jellied Oranges.
Cut good-sized oranges in halves or in basket shape. Throw the peel into cold water. Put the pulp into a saucepan with a cupful and a half of sugar to the pulp of six oranges, add the juice of two lemons, bring to the boiling point and add two tablespoonfuls of gelatin powder that has been dissolved in a little cold water. When all is melted, strain carefully, and when slightly cool, after draining the cups and shells, turn the jelly into the shells and set it aside to harden. Grapefruit may be prepared in the same way.

Stuffed Jellied Apples.
Wash, core and stuff as many baked apples as are needed with a savory stuffing made of chopped dates, chopped nuts, sugar, butter, spices, and a few raisins. Bake them in the usual way, but do not let them get too soft. When cold, have ready some melted apple jelly, place each apple in a small, wet mould, and cover it with the jelly, then set to harden. Serve the apples with whipped cream. If there is no apple jelly at hand, use instead a plain lemon jelly. This makes an attractive dessert.

Oat Flakes almost ready Quick Quaker Oats Cook in 3 to 5 minutes

Now there is a Quick Quaker Oats, as well as the style you know. The Quick style, perfected by our experts, is the quickest cooking oats in the world. It cooks to perfection in 3 to 5 minutes.

Both styles have the quality and flavor which have won the world. They are flaked from queen grains only—just the rich, plump, flavorful oats. We get but ten pounds from a bushel.

But in Quick Quaker the oats are cut before flaking. They are rolled very thin and partly cooked. So the flakes are smaller and thinner—that is all. And the small thin flakes cook quickly.

Valter's Enterprise Flour A Sack of Satisfaction

"Buymanship" Course Is Urged to Train Women How to Get Full Value for Money Spent

They Spend 83 Per Cent of Nation's Earnings, Says Expert, and YET—

By MARGUERITE MOORE MARSHALL

"BUYMANSHIP" for women! That's the perfectly good new idea and new word which Miss Mary E. Sweeney, founder and executive secretary of the American Home Economics Association, launched the other night at the convention of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, held in the Hotel Pennsylvania in New York.

What it means, of course, is "knowing how to buy," and Miss Sweeney frankly asked the association what it is doing today to get buymanship over to the American woman. "Eighty-three per cent of all the money earned in this country is being spent by women," she said, "and the average woman is getting about 20 per cent efficiency in the use of her share of that money."

"Tell me more about buymanship for women," I asked little, black-frocked, eager Miss Sweeney. "What are the most important points in efficiency buymanship, and how can women learn them?"

"The art of buymanship," Miss Sweeney answered my last question first, "will advance in just one way—through co-operation between the women who buy and the men who sell."

"The chief things which every woman ought to know about buymanship, and which every shop should help to teach her, are these: 1. How not to be or to feel cheated. 2. How to understand values—what makes the price. 3. How to know and obtain quality. 4. How to get what SHE wants—not what other women want. 5. How to be it quickly. 6. How to understand advertising. 7. How to procure standard goods. 8. How to know and obtain quality."

Then Miss Sweeney proceeded to explain each point in greater detail: "When the woman buyer feels that she has been cheated," she declared, "she often has cheated herself—but on the other hand, the store has done nothing to prevent her self-deception. She doesn't know what she ought to know about the goods she is buying, and the store, or its representative, the sales clerk, has not tried to teach her."

"A woman asks for a pair of silk stockings. She takes away a pair of imitation silk, and expects them to wear like the pure silk thread. When they don't she registers a black mark against the store. But she hasn't asked for the pure thread, she doesn't understand the difference between it and its cheaper substitutes, and even if the various kinds of stockings are truthfully labeled the average customer does not translate in her own mind what difference in quality the labels indicate. It would pay her—and it would pay the stores in the long run—if she should know what she is buying."

"She ought also to understand what goes into the price of a 'Georgette' blouse, in addition to three yards of material and a spool of thread. One of the factors in value and selling price about which she is most abysmally ignorant is the cost of distribution. One way of bringing that home to the average woman is to sell her clothing, as some stores already sell her groceries, on a cash-and-carry basis. One store I know conducted a survey of the costs of its delivery system and found that 42 cents went to delivery to every article by delivering it."

"Not only do I think a woman should learn to know quality, I also believe that the store should make it easy for her to obtain it. Let the stores do some educational work in persuading people to buy articles of wearing apparel and of household furnishing that are strong and beautiful, instead of mere tawdry, gimmickery. Why work so hard trying to sell the useless and the ugly and the fictitiously cheap?"

"I am particularly interested in your belief that the store should help women to practice buymanship by providing clothes which will suit the individual taste, and not merely the mass taste," I remarked. "It is practically impossible today for a 'real' old lady to find ready-made clothing which suits her and which will wear. The stores try to wish the flapper style of thing on everybody from seven to 70."

"That's exactly what they do," agreed Miss Sweeney. And she told me of her own experience in trying to buy a suit which harmonized with the dignified educational position which at that time she held.

"They showed me," she recalled, "these affairs with sleeves off here and all kinds of little Christmas trees hanging around. Finally I asked for the buyer. I said that I would tell her what I did for a living, so that she would know what kind of clothes I wanted. I was, at that time, dean of the home economics department in her State university.

"My God, woman," she exclaimed, "there aren't but two dresses, two suits, in this whole store that you can wear!"

"I bought one of the two dresses," concluded Miss Sweeney, with a smile, "but I have often wondered how all the other women with a conservative taste in clothes supplied their wardrobes."

"A woman who buys should know how to buy with an economy of her own time, and there, too, the store can co-operate—instead of sending her to half a dozen different departments to buy a bit of ribbon or a celluloid toothbrush case, because some clerk or floorwalker doesn't know the stock."

"Advertising should make more of an appeal to the intelligence of the woman buyer. She does not need to be an expert in buymanship to feel puzzled and distrustful of the advertisement which offers her a $250 frock reduced to $100. She wants to know why and how a store can afford such a gigantic drop—and she is even skeptical enough to think that perhaps the dress never was worth more than $100!"

"Finally, the woman who works—and that means in the America of today, one woman in every four—wants a greater standardization in the simplest and most essential articles. She wants her business suits, her everyday coats and hats, as little subject to the fluctuation of style as the apparel worn by men. Their suits come in different colors, there are slight variations in the mode—yet a man can buy a suit and wear it at least two years. Why should a woman's shop dealing in waists change the mode 38 times between January and April, as one New York firm told me it did?"

"What I would like to see, what every intelligent woman buyer would like to see," Miss Sweeney finished, earnestly, "is the men that run the stores getting together and asking the women what they want, instead of everlastingly saying: Here's what you must buy!"

Black Pussy Makes a Discovery By Thornton W. Burgess.

A cat that's wise will know her place And thus avoid undue disgrace.

BLACK PUSSY THE CAT had taken a great deal of interest in all that was going on in the Old Orchard. She knew all about the feeding shelves there. She knew all about the shelf at the window of Farmer Brown's house. She watched those shelves from a distance, for she knew better than to go very near them. She had tried that once or twice, and the lesson Farmer Brown's boy had given her was one she would not soon forget. So from a distance she would watch the feathered folk and the Squirrels at those feeding shelves, and the end of her tail would twitch with eagerness and longing.

When she could stand it no longer she would go over in another part of the Old Orchard hunting. There wasn't much to hunt there, but it gave her the satisfaction of hunting.

It was on one of these hunting trips that she discovered a little hole in the snow close to the trunk of a tree. One sniff at that hole told Black Pussy all that she wanted to know. That was the hole of a Mouse. Yes, sir, that was the hole of a Mouse. One of the children of Dan-y-Meadow Mouse had made that hole. The tail of Black Pussy twitched more than ever. She crouched down on the snow with her feet gathered under her and fixed her eyes on that hole. Only the tip of her tail moved. That would twitch every now and then. She just couldn't keep it still.

For the remainder of that afternoon she kept watch there. But she kept watch in vain. The Mouse who had made that hole didn't put so much as a whisker outside. After a while Black Pussy was sure that Sammy give up. But she didn't. She didn't forget the discovery she had made. She didn't ever there was nothing else.

DEPRECIATION.

GEN. ALLEN had an army of a thousand fighting men. He marched them into Germany and marched them back again. They lived like multi-millionaires, their pay was so immense. But when they got back home again it looked like 25 cents.

TOO TRUE.

While the $11,000,000 to be spent by the city on the River des Peres is more in proportion to size than the $14,000,000 appropriated by the Government for the Mississippi, comparisons are odorous.

See where Dummy Taylor wants a job with the Giants coaching young pitchers. Say it with fingers.

On June 11, 1934, Boj Wicker, pitching for the Cubs, won a 1-0 game from Joe McGinnity of the Giants. Fifteen years later, Wicker, pitching for Spokane against Tacoma, lost McGinnity into camp by the score of 2-1. Indicating that Boj still had a little something on Joe.

All of which is but another example of the uncertainties of baseball in which grand old pastime anybody is liable to beat anybody.

"Ruth Satisfied With New Park." All right, let the work go on.

"McCormick Again Marries Mme. Walaka." Seems to be a habit.

Jack Dempsey and Luis Firpo have been offered a purse of $1,000,000 to fight in Argentina. If that isn't enough add elphers to suit the taste.

ON WATCH. In elevators watch you step. And it is well to note. The warning in the restaurants. To watch your overcoat.

"Whisky Is Found During Hunt for Jewels." Like digging for copper and striking gold.

HARK, FROM THE TOMB! We notice that as soon as old Tutankhamen busted into print and began to crowd Turkey off the first place he got cocky and started to part his name in the middle, spelling it Tut Ankh Amen.

Tut may be a dead one but his press agent is a live wire who would have made even old Barnum sit up and take cognizance.

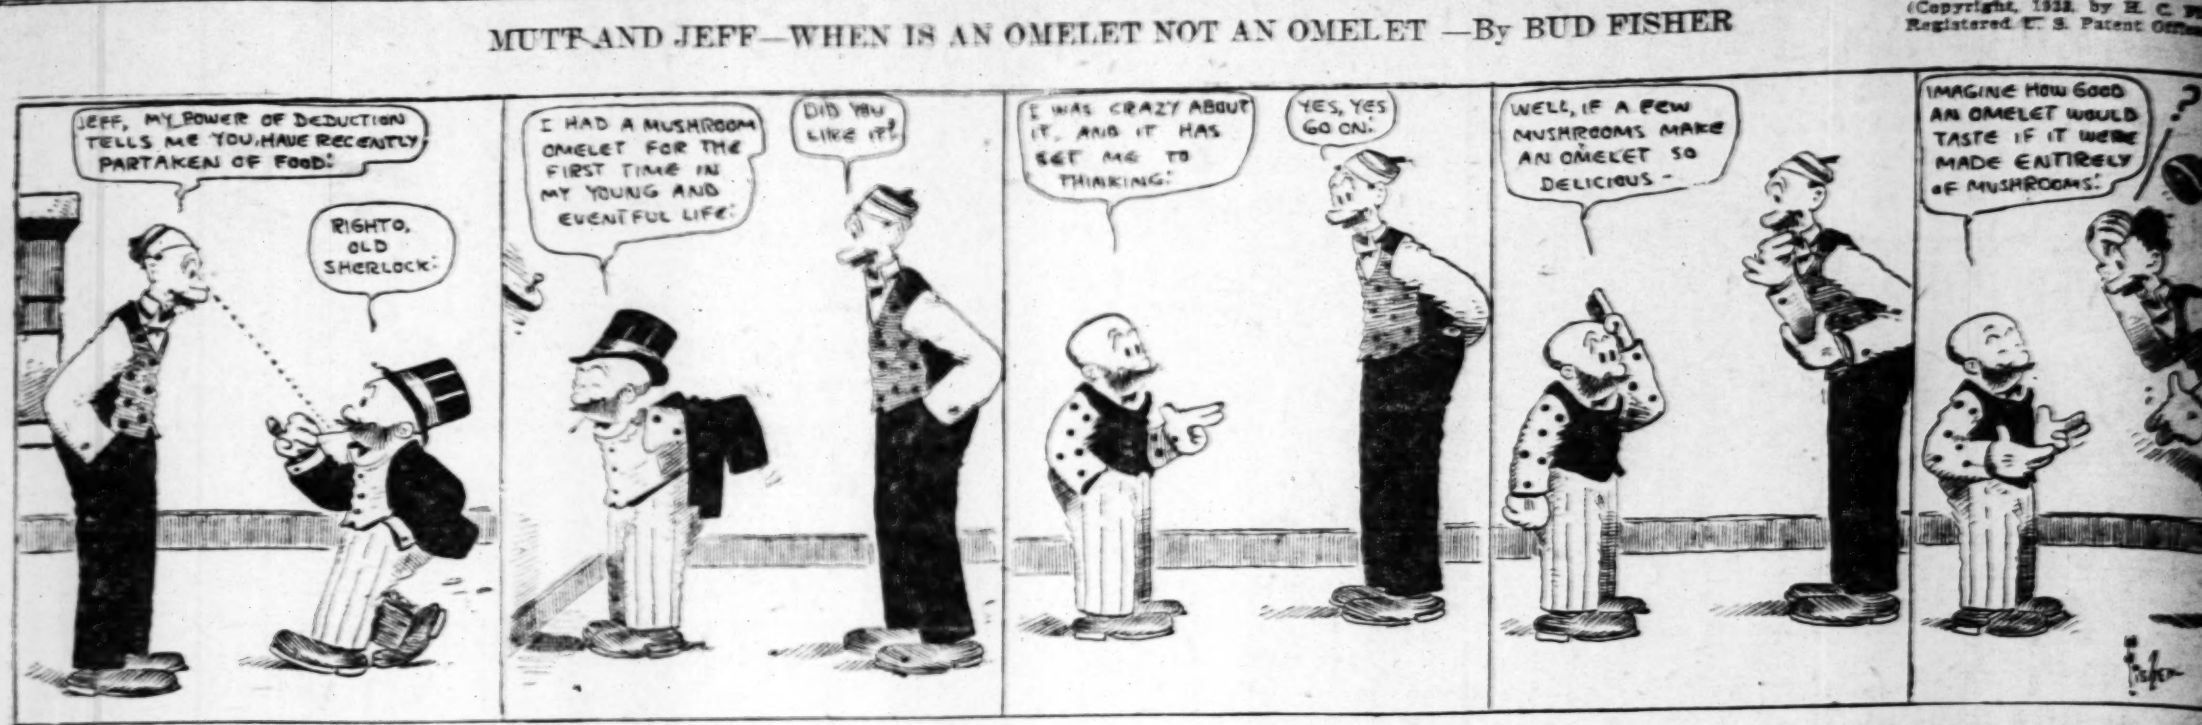

We gather from the richness of his tomb that Tut Ankh had a pretty good opinion of himself. In fact, like all these old mummies he was all wrapped up in himself.

See where Jack McAniff II is a candidate for the crown of Jack Dempsey II. These are two illustrious names in ring annals, but one of them would have to be content with second money.

If Rube Benton was good enough to play with the Saints how come he isn't good enough to play with Cincinnati?

There is no question that Jack Bentley has all the earmarks of a major league ball player. Jack is holding out for a slice of the purchase money.

Jack hasn't announced as yet what business he is going into, but no doubt it is one that will make a ball player's stipend look like chicken feed.

POLICEMAN KILLS YOUTHFUL KROGER STORE ROBBER

Patrolman Edward W. Ries
Concealed Behind Icebox
When Youth Holds Up
Grocery at 2200 S. 12th Street.

KILLING CLIMAX TO SERIES OF ROBBERIES

Chief of Police O'Brien Orders
Men to Spend as Much Time as Possible in Stores and Oil Stations.

Caught in the act of robbing a Kroger grocery at 2200 South Twelfth street yesterday afternoon, Joseph Herod, 17 years old, son of Mrs. Anna Herod, 1323 South Seventh street, was shot and killed by Patrolman Edward W. Ries of the South Street District, who was concealed in the store on a watch for robbers.

The killing came as a climax to the robbery yesterday of six other Kroger stores and occurred at 5:30 o'clock. In accordance with general instructions to policemen to spend as much time as possible in Kroger stores and oil filling stations, going to the numerous robberies of these places, Patrolman Ries entered the store about 5:20 p. m. and went behind the ice box, where he could command a view of the store. He had been there about 10 minutes when a youth, about 18 years old, entered and asked for a package of cookies. As George C. Luft, 2321 Victor street, manager of the store, turned and reached for the cookies, Herod, with revolver in hand, dashed in and gave the familiar command, "Stick 'em up." Luft turned and elevated his hands.

Patrolman Ries saw the act and heard the command. He drew his revolver and, stepping from behind the icebox, commanded, "Put that gun down." The robber was not facing Ries and evidently did not know a policeman had spoken, for he shouted, "You put 'em up, too," as he began to turn to face Ries. The policeman fired one shot, which struck Herod in the left arm. Herod fell to the floor on his back. Writing from pain, he quickly turned over and attempted to reach the revolver, which had fallen from his hand. Ries pounced upon him and overpowered him, and during the scuffle the other youth, believed to be an accomplice of Herod, dashed through the door and escaped.

Herod murmured incoherently as Ries held him and Luft telephoned for an ambulance. The youth died before the ambulance arrived. Detectives and the youth's mother and brother identified the body at the morgue.

In Herod's pockets were a pair of dice, $1.44 and photographs of two girls. His revolver was .38 caliber and fully loaded. Additional policemen were assigned to the case and a hunt started for Herod's companion, the youth who started to purchase the cookies, which police believe was only a ruse to catch Luft with his back to the door.

Two 17-year-old boys, known to have been associates of Herod, were detained for questioning. One admitted having been with Herod yesterday afternoon, but said he left him at 4:30 o'clock, an hour before the killing.

Youth Had a Police Record. Herod had a police record, having been arrested six times in the last five years on charges of rape, shooting, suspicion of robbery, disturbance of the peace and various delinquencies. He never had been convicted.

Only recently he and another youth were arrested on information by Capt. Kirk of the South Street Station that Herod had been robbing Kroger stores. None of the store managers who had been robbed could identify him.

Patrolman Ries, who was commended for his watchfulness, is 44 years old and lives at 3119 Cherokee street. He has been a policeman 15 years. He said he did not shoot until the robber ignored his command and turned to shoot him. This is corroborated by Luft. Raymond Fitzgerald, 12 years old, of 2319 South Twelfth street, who was in the store at the time, was too frightened to make a statement.

Kills His Fellow Workman.

PARIS, Feb. 20.—Francis Salvador and Jacques Russel were employed to gather up and destroy unexploded shells which still are found on the Northern battlefields. They quarreled and Salvador killed his fellow workman. The murderer then placed Russel's body on a pile of ammunition and set it off. It has been revealed. He told the authorities at first that the dead man had dropped a cigaret into the ammunition.
